A JOB WITH A VIEW

BARELY DISTRACTED by the spectacular view, a workman from a scaffolding contractor assembles the TV commentary booth for the AT&T Pebble Beach National Pro-Am which gets underway with practice rounds Monday. The courses for the tournament "are in the best shape they have ever been at this time of year," said R.J. Harper, Senior Vice President of Golf for the P.B. Co. He thanked his golf course superintendents, Tom Huesgen and Chris Dahlmer, for their hard work, and gave credit to Mother Nature for weeks of perfect weather after December's heavy rains. Complete coverage of the upcoming tournament is in our special Section C, inside

Dueling polls reveal opposite conclusions on desalination

Public wants plant built, but by whom?

By PAUL MILLER

A WASHINGTON, D.C., polling company says the people of the Monterey Peninsula, by a margin of 48 to 15 percent, want Cal-Am to build a desal plant in Moss Landing, the water company announced this week.

The company's November telephone survey of 500 registered voters was commissioned by Cal-Am.

But a survey conducted by Cal-Am's desal competitor, the Pajaro/Sunny Mesa Community Services District, reached the opposite conclusion. PSM's survey, based on 517 responses to advertisements in four local newspapers last December, found an amazing 96 percent of respondents prefer Pajaro/Sunny Mesa to build the plant.

"We got an overwhelming response from all over Monterey County," said Mark del Piero, general manager of the community services district, which provides water to residents of the Pajaro Valley. The agency is proposing to build a 20,000-acre-foot desal plant on land owned by Nader Agha in Moss Landing, with most of its water going to the Monterey Peninsula. "It was nice to get that kind of validation, because we're a small agency that isn't that well known outside North Monterey County," del Piero said.

Pen and ink drawings reveal another side of Bill Bates, the 'walking laughter zone'

By ANNE PAPINEAU

BILL BATES, riding a bus to rejoin his cruise ship on the Atlantic coast of Morocco, asked the driver to stop and let him out.

Sailing time was just two hours away.

"I saw my first tree-climbing goat," Bates recalled in his soft Texas accent. "The goat was on top of a tree, not a bush, eating berries. I had to get that. The driver asked, 'How are you going to get back?' I hitchhiked."

To anyone who has chuckled at the framed cartoons in the downtown post office or giggled over his latest original in The Carmel Pine Cone, where his works have appeared for more than 30 years, Bates is the sketchbook chronicler of people, things and issues unique to Carmel. His cartoons are ubiquitous in this village, up to and including the wall-sized map-mural next to Nielsen Bros. market. In a city proclamation in 1998, a two-mile radius around wherever Bates happened to be was officially dubbed the Walking Laughter Zone by Mayor Ken White. Anyone inside the zone was barred from having a bad day and required to understand the punch line.

'Composition is everywhere; it just depends where you crop it.'

— Bill Bates

So it may come as a surprise to many that the Bates' pen is not directed solely at our village. At last count, he has completed 5,000 pen and ink drawings — in a style far different from his signature cartoons — on location in 133 different

A CalSTAR helicopter used the same landing zone near Point Lobos twice Monday: to airlift the victim of a car accident, and to fly a man injured when the Bobcat utility vehicle he was driving rolled over.

Helicopters airlift victims in two accidents on same day

By MARY BROWNFIELD

CARMEL HIGHLANDS firefighters and CalSTAR helicopter crews were busy Monday, first responding to a Highway 1 car wreck and then to a heavy equipment accident on Highlands Drive.

The solo driver of a GMC Envoy was heading south on Highway 1 at about 60 mph Monday morning when he skidded off the road, "hit a dirt berm, careened off a tree and swerved to the right, hitting a post" on Point Lobos property, said California State Parks Ranger Chuck Bancroft.

"For whatever reason, the post held the car up, so it was at a 45-degree angle with the front end in the ground and the rear end in the air," said Cypress Fire Captain Colin MacDonald, whose engine responded to the scene after someone walked into the station and reported the accident. "I knew we were going to need an air ambulance."

The driver, Eugene Karnaszewski of Tucson, Ariz., suffered a head injury, lacerations and internal injuries. He was loaded into an ambulance and taken to an open field nearby, where a CalSTAR helicopter landed to fly him to Santa Clara

CITY HAS BUCKS IN THE BANK AT MIDYEAR

By MARY BROWNFIELD

WITH HIGHER revenues and lower costs than expected, the City of Carmel-by-the-Sea finished the first half of this fiscal year $651,777 in the black, city administrator Rich Guillen told the mayor and city council Tuesday. But he recommended holding off on celebrating.

"We're fairly close to projections, but it's not a bullish type of year, yet," he said.

Total city revenues, estimated at $4,845,995 for the first six months, came in at $5,047,126 — $201,131 above target, according to Guillen.

Of the three biggest sources of city income, two came in high and one low. Sales tax was up $16,701 over the estimated $965,120, and transient occupancy tax was $30,304 above the expected $1,202,379, but property taxes were $8,566 less than the projected midyear total of $1,689,631.

Other government agency payouts — specifically the state's Vehicle License Fee — rolled in much higher than the expected $18,811, at $157,427 for the first six months.

"During the budget meetings, we had elected to not put any money in for VLF," said Guillen, because the city did not expect to receive it. "We just got the check the other day."

On the negative side, traffic safety money generated $8,731 less than the $100,000 target, and gas tax also fell $4,711 below the $37,750 estimate.

Tighter purse strings

Meanwhile, expenses came in well below target, finishing $450,646 under the budgeted $5,678,398.

The city paid $306,257 less than the estimated $2,704,222 in salaries and wages, but retirements and the elimination of 24 jobs this year put six-month "benefit liability" payments $116,906 higher than the budgeted $30,000, according to Guillen. Unemployment payouts were also $11,463 higher than the estimated $5,500, since some of

House Searching With Children

You're being transferred to a distant city. You decide to take the whole family on a shopping expedition—looking for your new home.

Be forewarned. Looking at homes is, frankly, a very difficult mental and emotional task. This is not to discount the fact that it can be a lot of fun. It's to point out, up front, that it is very difficult for a child to conceptualize what a room will look like with his or her furniture in it. And it's very natural for the child, therefore, to grow bored with the house search very quickly and to start paying attention to irrelevant details, like the quality of a homeowner's set of video games.

The imaginative leap, placing your furniture and your lifestyle in a home for sale and seeing if it fits—if, in fact, it sets off a positive emotional buzzer in you—is hard enough for adults without having to make certain their children aren't destroying the homes you look at. Okay, maybe not YOUR children, but believe us, we have stories!

The whole family, though, really should be brought into every stage of the home purchase and move. We recommend that you precede your actual home search with family meetings, where all your needs in a home are discussed fully and openly. The first home searches should probably be done by the adults, if possible, bringing the whole family in on the process when prime candidates for purchase have been found. Need help? Police & Sheriff's Log

Broom-wielding man up to here, already with blocked driveway

HERE'S A look at some of the significant calls logged by the Carmel-by-the-Sea Police Department, the Carmel Fire Department and the Monterey County Sheriff's Office last week. This week's log was compiled by Mary Brownfield.

SUNDAY, JANUARY 23

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Under the cover of darkness, a suspect approached a city tree on Scenic Road and trimmed several limbs without a permit. The suspect was cited for illegal tree trimming.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: At 1130 hours, a citizen reported seeing food repeatedly left out in front of a Fourth Avenue house. At approximately 1245 hours, attempted to contact the person responsible. A courtesy notice was left at the door. Officer was later contacted by phone by the person who was setting bread out on city property. The citizen stated the food will no longer be left out.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Subject reported a rear garage door left open at a Casanova Street residence. She noticed on the key pad on her alarm that there had been an activation. She also heard a truck in her driveway. The alarm was not a burglar alarm-type activation and the garage was not wired. It was a panic-type alarm that could only be set off from her keypad which she was activating when she returned home. Her home as well as the surrounding area were checked and no problems were discovered.

MONDAY, JANUARY 24

Carmel-by-the-Sea: At 0820 hours, received a call from a male San Carlos Street resident that his wife had passed away during the night. Upon arrival, the ambulance crew determined the victim had been deceased for several hours.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: A contractor alleged that he has an outstanding bill for services rendered at a Junipero Street construction site. The contractor wished for a civil standby at the residence in order for him to give a bill to his customer. The homeowner was at home and refused to speak with the contractor. The homeowner did allow the contractor to take some painting supplies as per the contractor's request. The homeowner observed what was being taken and allowed the contractor to take what was displayed. Both parties counseled that this was a civil matter and that each should seek the advice of legal counsel.

THE CROSSROADS

Carmel High grads on board storm-battered ship

By MARY BROWNFIELD

TWO CARMEL High graduates sought to satisfy their thirst for adventure by enrolling in Semester at Sea — the ultimate road trip for a college student — where they could explore the globe by ship while taking courses in an academic program sponsored by the University of Pittsburgh.

But in their first two weeks on the open sea, Evynn LeValley and Brittany Downing got more adventure than they ever expected, according to Evynn's mother, CHS guidance counselor Marikay LeValley.

After setting sail from Vancouver, Canada, Jan. 18, the 591-foot MV Explorer encountered days of stormy seas followed by brief calm.

"When they first went out, they had a pretty good storm, and a lot of the kids were seasick for the first four or five days," LeValley said. "Evynn e-mailed me and said a couple of kids had fallen out of their chairs and things were flying around the rooms."

Soon the fierce winter storms rose again, and last Wednesday the ship was struck by a 50-foot wave that smashed head-on into the bridge, breaking windows, injuring two crew members and flooding the circuits that controlled the engines, according to the U.S. Coast Guard.

With 990 people aboard — 681 students, 113 faculty and staff, and 196 crew members — the ship lost power to all four engines and was adrift in 35-foot seas with winds gusting above 50 mph.

Fortunately, except for the engine controls, the ship's electrical systems continued functioning and the captain was able to radio for help. The Coast Guard dispatched a cutter, and three long-range HC-130 aircraft from bases in Alaska and Hawaii. Four merchant ships were also asked to rendezvous with the disabled passenger vessel packed with college kids.

The damaged ship was temporarily disabled but has since landed in Hawaii for repairs.

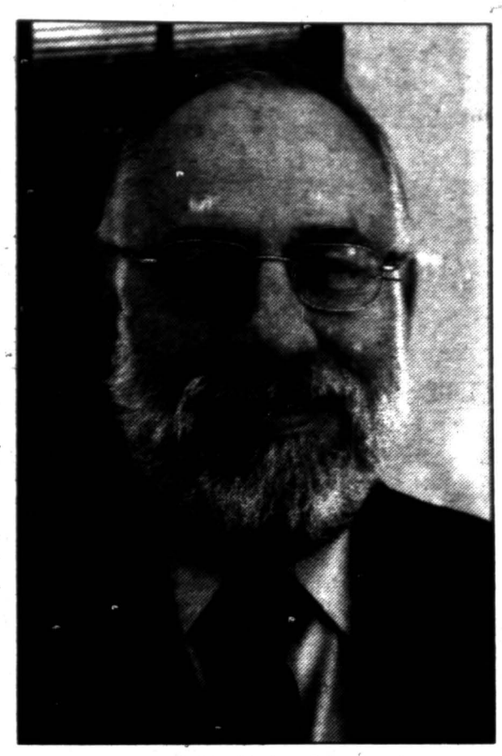
LITTLE REST FOR NEW SUNSET CENTER BOSS

By MARY BROWNFIELD

JACK GLOBENFELT hasn't had much time to write poetry during his first month as executive director of Sunset Center, and he has yet to visit Tor House or go kayaking. That his hobbies go unpracticed is not surprising, considering he's been spending at least 60 hours a week on the job.

"But that's not a lot," Globenfelt said as he sat in his office Tuesday. A collection of miniature fire engines adorns his new work space, augmented by Sunset Theater posters from earlier eras that feature $1 ticket prices and a remarkably youthful image of classical guitarist Andrés Segovia.

Following an extensive search, the nonprofit Sunset Cultural Center, Inc. hired Globenfelt away from his 20-year job as managing director of the Center for Performing Arts at Lehman College in New York.



Jack Globenfelt

The board might have expected him to start his new job bright an early on a Monday morning, but Globenfelt began work on Sunday, Jan. 2.

"It's pretty much what I thought it was going to be," he said after a month on the job. "It's a gorgeous facility in a beautiful place with people who enjoy the arts. We're trying to capitalize on all those values."

Reducing the heavily subsidized Sunset Center's dependence on city money is a daunting task that Globenfelt will use his four decades of show biz experience to undertake. A native Californian, Globenfelt graduated from Fresno State and took his first job as assistant manager of the convention center there, and he's been involved in entertainment in one way or another ever since Globenfelt credited a dedicated and hardworking board of directors for laying the foundation for him.

"They've set up a good model for the operations of the facility," he said. "They've done a lot of work that boards don't traditionally do to make things happen."

He's spent much of his time getting to know the staff and the operation of Sunset Center, as well as its long-time occupants — the Monterey Symphony, Chamber Music Monterey Bay and the Carmel Bach Festival. He's learning "what events have worked and will work," he said. Carmel residents the fired employees have yet to find new jobs.

MIDYEAR

Guillen said he expects salaries and wages paid in the second half of the year will be closer to the budgeted amount, as several vacancies have been filled. Three jobs remained funded but unoccupied as of Dec. 31, 2004: a financial services coordinator, a police sergeant and a fire engineer.

"We're not hiring as many consultants as projected," Guillen continued. "We're $91,456 ahead of the game, and I'm optimistic that trend will continue." The council had budgeted $299,247 for "professional fees, outside labor and contract services" in the first six months of the fiscal year.

Spending on materials and supplies came in $52,792 under the budgeted $250,135, and a new system will prevent last-minute purchases of wish-list items by employees aiming to use up their budgeted funds before the end of the year, according to Guillen.

"City staff is doing a good job watching pennies," he said.

He cautioned the council that the third-quarter months of January, February and March are historically the slowest of the year in terms of income and said, "I recommend staying the course."

Councilman Mike Cunningham found cause for optimism in the midyear budget numbers.

"We have every reason to believe that revenues might finish the year at or above target, and on the expenses side, there's considerably good news," he said. "Some people think they city's finances are on the rocks, and if you studied this report, you would not see that at all."

countries. Yes, 133.

The fruits of these efforts will be showcased in Bates' first-ever one-man show at the Carmel Art Association, of which he's long been a member.

"Around the World in Pen and Ink" opens with a reception from 6 to 8 p.m. Saturday, Feb. 5, at the CAA, on Dolores between Fifth and Sixth in Carmel-by-the-Sea.

Bates winnowed through his 5,000 pen and inks to exhibit an even 50. The artist will make an appearance at the CAA from 1 to 4 p.m. Saturday, Feb. 12, when he will sketch on-the-spot caricatures, free of charge — a spontaneous spirit that is also evident in his international sketches.

Starting in 1979, Bates signed on as shipboard artist for such prestigious cruise lines as Royal Viking, Cunard, Seabourn and Radisson. Time flew and Bates illustrated 28 cruises, including 13 that went around the world.

"I have a standing invitation from these shipping lines. I'm the only one doing it in the world," Bates stated. "There was an artist who sailed with Darwin, and another with Captain Cook, but they're the latest ones I remember."

Accompanying him on many of these trips were his wife, Lei Lei, and daughter, Chelsea, now a seventh grader at Junipero Serra School at the Carmel Mission. She was home schooled by her mother for six hours a day at sea, via a correspondence course that featured a virtual classroom on a computer screen.

But the 12-year-old veteran world traveler is now enjoying her land-based school so much, Bates said, "We won't be cruising again until she finishes high school."

As with latter-day Monterey Peninsula artist Jo Mora, Bates is continually busy illustrating, be it in books, cartoons, or even the color signage for specials inside Trader Joe's market in Pacific Grove.

"I work four hours a day there and get complete medical and dental coverage for my whole family," he said.

The complete story of Bates' cruise drawings would be a book in itself — or, more precisely, 28 coffee-table-sized, hardbound, limited edition, numbered and signed volumes of his art.

"We would be in port usually for just a few hours," he explained. "I'd go out and sit anywhere, usually on a curb, an apple box, whatever, and sketch whatever turned me on.

"The main thing is to get the right composition. Composition is everywhere; it just depends where you crop it. Like the viewfinder of a camera, your eye can decipher composition."

Bates found endless inspiration in the fjords of Norway, the masses of people in China and India, in exotic architecture.

"It took me 20 minutes to three hours per drawing. People come and look. I draw crowds everywhere. The one thing that impressed me about China, they allowed about a four-foot ring of space around me. In other countries, they crowded right next to me."

Colorful individuals stand out in the artist's memory.

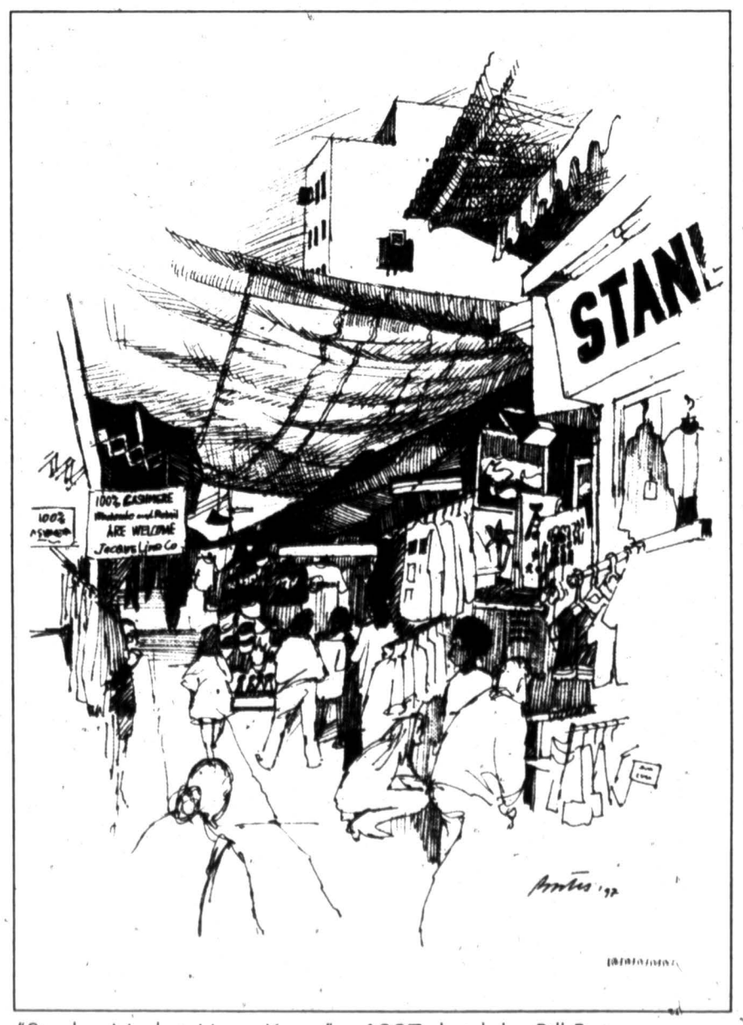
"In Naples, I was sitting on a curb, and a crowd gathered, looking down at the statue I was drawing. All of a sudden this man blurted out, 'Bravo,' 'Bellissimo,' 'Grand Artiste,' then he leaned over and said, 'You wanna buy a wristwatch?'

"Or the money changer in Singapore, who asked me what I'd charge to do a picture of him, 'at today's price.' I asked him, 'You mean while I'm still alive?'"

Bates previously had a show at the CAA, a joint exhibit with fellow Carmel cartoonists Gus Arriola and Eldon Dedini. He first visited this area in 1963 as part of a national cartoonist convention, and, like that, "was hooked."

He's a supremely busy artist.

"I'm writing my memoirs for my children. Maybe there's a book out of it. I'm printing it by hand," Bates mused.



"Stanley Market, Hong Kong," a 1997 sketch by Bill Bates.

'I have a standing invitation from these shipping lines. I'm the only one doing it in the world. There was an artist who sailed with Darwin, and another with Captain Cook, but they're the latest ones I remember.'

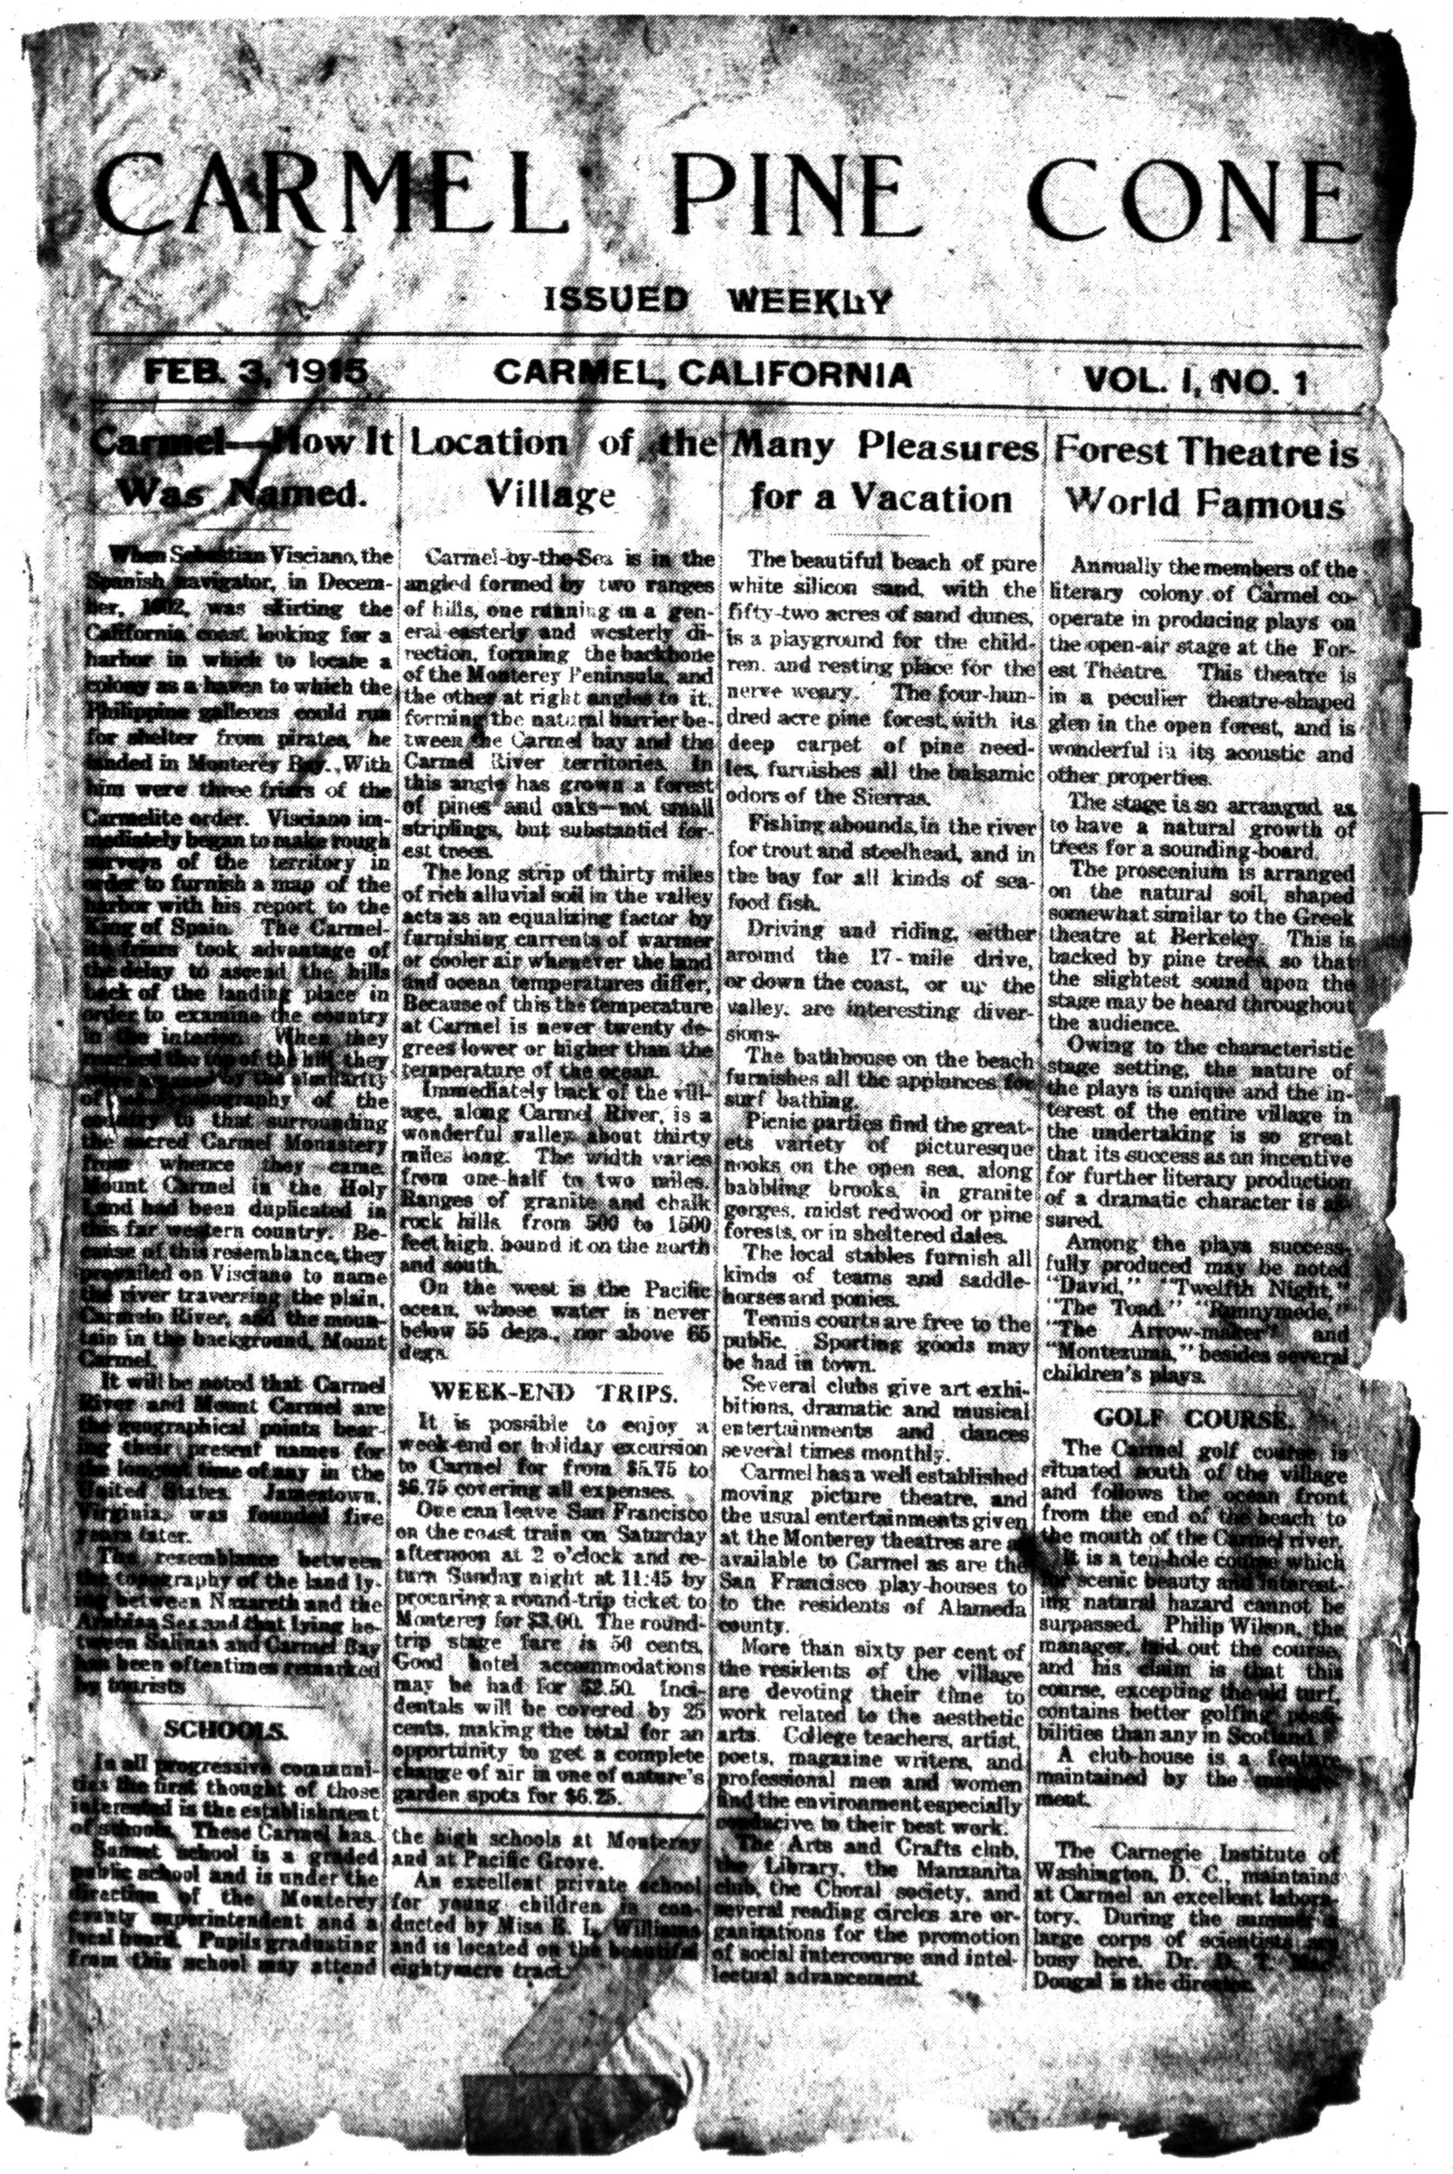
THE PINE CONE IS 90 YEARS OLD

ON FEB. 3, 1915, The Carmel Pine Cone was born as an unpretentious promotional tabloid, hand printed by its founder, W.L. Overstreet, on an early rotary printing press for the edification of what was then an unincorporated town of just 400 souls. Within a year, Overstreet would delve into complex local, national, and international political issues — explaining why California should be divided into two states, exploring the effect of the burgeoning motion picture industry on saloons, and quoting extensively from a French general on the progress of the Great War. But the first edition was directed at tourists, carrying such items as "Carmel — How it Was Named," "Many Pleasures for a Vacation," and "Forest Theater is World Famous."

This newsworthy tidbit, headlined "Week-end trips" was also on the front: "One can leave San Francisco on the coast train on Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock and return Sunday night at 11:45 by procuring a round-trip ticket to Monterey for $3. The round trip stage fare [from Monterey to Carmel] is 50 cents. Good hotel accommodations may be had for $2.50. Incidentals will be covered by 25 cents, making the total for an opportunity to get a complete change of air in one of nature's garden spots for $6.25." Happy birthday to The Pine Cone, along with our gratitude to all its readers, past and present, for making this newspaper possible.



CARMEL PINE CONE

ISSUED WEEKLY

FEB. 3, 1915 CARMEL, CALIFORNIA VOL. I, NO. 1

Carmel—How It Was Named.

When Sebastian Visciano, the Spanish navigator, in December, 1602, was skirting the California coast looking for a harbor in which to locate a colony as a haven to which the Philippine galleons could run for shelter from pirates, he landed in Monterey Bay. With him were three friars of the Carmelite order. Visciano immediately began to make rough surveys of the territory in order to furnish a map of the harbor with his report to the King of Spain. The Carmelite friars took advantage of the delay to ascend the hills back of the landing place in order to examine the country in the interior. When they reached the top of the hill they were struck by the similarity of the topography of the country to that surrounding the sacred Carmel Monastery from whence they came. Mount Carmel in the Holy Land had been duplicated in this far western country. Because of this resemblance, they prevailed on Visciano to name the river traversing the plain, Carmelo River, and the mountain in the background, Mount Carmel.

It will be noted that Carmel River and Mount Carmel are the geographical points bearing their present names for the longest time of any in the United States. Jamestown, Virginia, was founded five years later.

The resemblance between the topography of the land lying between Nazareth and the Arabian Sea and that lying between Salinas and Carmel Bay has been oftentimes remarked by tourists.

SCHOOLS.

In all progressive communities the first thought of those interested is the establishment of schools. These Carmel has. Carmel school is a graded public school and is under the direction of the Monterey county superintendent and a local board. Pupils graduating from this school may attend the high schools at Monterey and at Pacific Grove.

An excellent private school for young children is conducted by Miss E. L. Williams and is located on the beautiful eighty-acre tract.

Location of the Village

Carmel-by-the-Sea is in the angled formed by two ranges of hills, one running in a general easterly and westerly direction, forming the backbone of the Monterey Peninsula, and the other at right angles to it, forming the natural barrier between the Carmel bay and the Carmel River territories. In this angle has grown a forest of pines and oaks—not small striplings, but substantial forest trees.

The long strip of thirty miles of rich alluvial soil in the valley acts as an equalizing factor by furnishing currents of warmer or cooler air whenever the land and ocean temperatures differ. Because of this the temperature at Carmel is never twenty degrees lower or higher than the temperature of the ocean.

Immediately back of the village, along Carmel River, is a wonderful valley about thirty miles long. The width varies from one-half to two miles. Ranges of granite and chalk rock hills from 500 to 1500 feet high, bound it on the north and south.

On the west is the Pacific ocean, whose water is never below 55 degs., nor above 65 degs.

WEEK-END TRIPS.

It is possible to enjoy a week-end or holiday excursion to Carmel for from $5.75 to $6.75 covering all expenses.

One can leave San Francisco on the coast train on Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock and return Sunday night at 11:45 by procuring a round-trip ticket to Monterey for $3.00. The round-trip stage fare is 50 cents. Good hotel accommodations may be had for $2.50. Incidentals will be covered by 25 cents, making the total for an opportunity to get a complete change of air in one of nature's garden spots for $6.25.

Many Pleasures for a Vacation

The beautiful beach of pure white silicon sand, with the fifty-two acres of sand dunes, is a playground for the children, and resting place for the nerve weary. The four-hundred acre pine forest, with its deep carpet of pine needles, furnishes all the balsamic odors of the Sierras.

Fishing abounds in the river for trout and steelhead, and in the bay for all kinds of sea-food fish.

Driving and riding, either around the 17-mile drive, or down the coast, or up the valley, are interesting diversions.

The bathhouse on the beach furnishes all the appliances for surf bathing.

Picnic parties find the greatest variety of picturesque nooks on the open sea, along babbling brooks, in granite gorges, midst redwood or pine forests, or in sheltered dales.

The local stables furnish all kinds of teams and saddle-horses and ponies.

Tennis courts are free to the public. Sporting goods may be had in town.

Several clubs give art exhibitions, dramatic and musical entertainments and dances several times monthly.

Carmel has a well established moving picture theatre, and the usual entertainments given at the Monterey theatres are available to Carmel as are the San Francisco play-houses to to the residents of Alameda county.

More than sixty per cent of the residents of the village are devoting their time to work related to the aesthetic arts. College teachers, artist, poets, magazine writers, and professional men and women find the environment especially conducive to their best work.

The Arts and Crafts club, the Library, the Manzanita club, the Choral society, and several reading circles are organizations for the promotion of social intercourse and intellectual advancement.

Forest Theatre is World Famous

Annually the members of the literary colony of Carmel cooperate in producing plays on the open-air stage at the Forest Theatre. This theatre is in a peculiar theatre-shaped glen in the open forest, and is wonderful in its acoustic and other properties.

The stage is so arranged as to have a natural growth of trees for a sounding-board.

The proscenium is arranged on the natural soil, shaped somewhat similar to the Greek theatre at Berkeley. This is backed by pine trees, so that the slightest sound upon the stage may be heard throughout the audience.

Owing to the characteristic stage setting, the nature of the plays is unique and the interest of the entire village in the undertaking is so great that its success as an incentive for further literary production of a dramatic character is assured.

Among the plays successfully produced may be noted "David," "Twelfth Night," "The Toad," "Rummyrnede," "The Arrow-maker" and "Montezuma," besides several children's plays.

GOLF COURSE.

The Carmel golf course is situated south of the village and follows the ocean front from the end of the beach to the mouth of the Carmel river.

It is a ten-hole course which for scenic beauty and interesting natural hazard cannot be surpassed. Philip Wilson, the manager, laid out the course, and his claim is that this course, excepting the old turf, contains better golfing possibilities than any in Scotland.

A club-house is a feature maintained by the management.

The Carnegie Institute of Washington, D. C., maintains at Carmel an excellent laboratory. During the summer a large corps of scientists are busy here. Dr. D. T. MacDougal is the director.

PASSERSBY RESCUE DIVER AT MONASTERY BEACH

By MARY BROWNFIELD

AN EXHAUSTED scuba diver was saved by passersby at Monastery Beach Monday afternoon after they spotted him in the surf, but a friend he said he was diving with disappeared.

County 911 dispatcher David Liest had been shooting photographs at the beach Jan. 31 when he said he saw the man, later identified as 50-year-old Redwood City resident Daniel Murphy, don his scuba gear and enter the water alone.

About 25 minutes later, he saw him again, motionless and tangled in the kelp, and with a couple from South Dakota, a man from Santa Cruz and ER nurse Diane Kester, pulled him out of the surf.

"We were in the water waist deep, and everything was wrapped around his legs," Liest said of Murphy's gear, which the man had apparently attempted to abandon as he struggled to reach the shore.

Fighting Monastery's notoriously strong undertow and the choppy surf, the group struggled to bring Murphy up onto the sand.

"Big waves kept coming in," Liest said later, his jeans and shoes still wet from the seawater, as an equally drenched Kester stood nearby. "I thought we were going to lose that guy."

Liest immediately alerted County emergency communications dispatchers to the emergency, and an exhausted, shaking Murphy reported another diver, Steve Quinn, was still in the water.

California Department of Forestry firefighters, AMR ambulance, Pacific Grove Ocean Rescue, California State Parks rangers and lifeguards, and Monterey County Sheriff's Office responded. U.S. Coast Guard sent a cutter and a helicopter to assist in the search, and Carmel Highlands Fire launched its Zodiac.

As the two-man state parks lifeguard team searched the water closest to the coast,

Public gets two months to review new September Ranch EIR

By CHRIS COUNTS

TO MAKE sure the public has plenty of opportunity to weigh in on the latest version of the September Ranch subdivision, the Monterey County Board of Supervisors decided Tuesday the project has to go back to the beginning of the county permit process.

'I appreciate the applicant's willingness to go back to the planning commission . . . it might not be required, but is appropriate given the contentiousness of the project.'

— Supervisor Dave Potter

With the release of a new environmental impact report last month, Carmel Valley activists feared the project might be fast-tracked, because it was already approved by the county in 1995.

September Ranch owner Jim Morgens hopes to subdivide 891 acres into 94 residential lots, 15 units of "affordable" housing, and a 20-acre lot for an existing equestrian facility. He also proposes to dedicate 783 acres as open space. The supervisors approved the same project nine years ago, but lawsuits in 1999 derailed it on the grounds that traffic and water issues had not been adequately addressed in the original EIR. Morgens spent more than $500,000 on a revised EIR.

Representing the September Ranch, attorney Tony Lombardo defended Morgens' plan.

"The new EIR reaches the same conclusions as the first EIR," Lombardo said. "The environmental impacts of this project can be mitigated."

Paula Lotz, land use chair of the Carmel Valley Association, encouraged supervisors to require a lengthy public hearing process.

"There is no doubt that if approved, this project will have major impacts our community," Lotz said.

Fifth District Supervisor Dave Potter agreed that the public should have ample time to review the project, but he also lamented the project's "long history."

"I appreciate the applicant's willingness to go back to the planning commission," Potter said. Such action "might not be required, but is appropriate given the contentiousness of the project."

Over the next two months, public hearings will be scheduled at meetings of the Carmel Valley LUAC, the Monterey County Subdivision Committee and the Monterey County Planning Committee.

Assistant Planning Director Alana Knaster commented such a schedule was "really tight."

Potter responded that he was committed to the two-month time frame for public comments on September Ranch.

"If you see a speed bump coming up, please advise us," he said.

KEEP AN EYE OUT FOR NO PARKING ZONES

PINE CONE STAFF REPORT

TO KEEP bottlenecks to a minimum during one of the Peninsula's busiest weekends of the year, Carmel Police Department will designate several residential streets off limits to parked cars.

From Wednesday, Feb. 9, through the conclusion of the AT&T Pebble Beach National Pro-Am on Sunday, Feb. 13, temporary tow-away zones will be in effect 24 hours a day on:

- Fourth Avenue between San Antonio Avenue and Monte Verde;
- Second Avenue at Camino Real, Carmelo and Lopez;
- San Antonio from the Pebble Beach gate to Fourth Avenue; and
- east side of San Antonio between Ocean and Seventh avenues.

"They"ll all be posted," said Carmel Police Cpl. Steve Rana. "The reasons for these are because they're choke points on those streets, and we need to be able to get emergency vehicles through if needed."

Vehicles found parked in the no-parking zones during tournament week will be towed and stored at the owner's expense.

For more information, call Rana at Carmel P.D., (831) 624-6403.

LING CHOW'S at the Barnyard, Carmel, opened several weeks ago, taking the place of the erstwhile Golden Buddha restaurant. Owned by Cynthia Ling — well known in restaurant circles here — Ling Chow's offers an Asian fusion cuisine with Joseph Lee as executive chef and chef de cuisine. He previously owned the Chinese Village in Seaside. Manager is Cynthia's son, Christopher.

The gigantic statue of Buddha has been transformed: Now red and enclosed in rice paper, the Buddha looks down on deep purple walls and Chinese red alcoves adorned with contemporary art. The full bar is all mirrors and the entrance doors are of stainless steel. This upscale decor was created by Cynthia and interior designer Michele Higgins of Yountville.

Ling Chow's opens at 5 seven nights a week, and will very soon be open for lunch, too, perhaps by month's end. Telephone is (831) 622-0146.

TASTING EVENTS at Rancho Cellars Fine Wine Merchants for February include the following: Tuesday, Feb. 8, Inniskillin - something sweet pre-Valentine's Day - $25; Tuesday, Feb. 15, Santa Cruz Mountains: Varner wines and Storrs Winery, $25; Tuesday, Feb. 22, Oregon Pinot Noir tasting, $25; and Super Thursday, Feb. 24, 1998 Oregon Pinot Noir retrospective, $55 with reservations required.

Tuesday wine events start at 6 p.m. sharp. Call (831) 625-5646 for information, and to reserve space for the Feb. 24 tasting.

DR. DAVID YATZ, a Yale University public health expert has said, "Today's kids may be the first generation in history whose life expectancy is projected to be less than that of their parents." Attacking the problem of obesity were eight Monterey County agencies, including California State University, Monterey Bay's Farm-to-School Partnership program that hosted an obesity summit last week. The Salad Bowl of the World Award, sponsored by Mills Family Farms, was presented to Alisal Union School District by Superintendent of Schools William Barr. The school district was honored for its pioneer work developing and implementing school nutrition policies.

LAST CALL for The Masters of Food & Wine culinary event set for Feb. 18-20 at Highlands Inn Park Hyatt Hotel: General Manager Andrew Davidson said many of the events are sold out. But log on to the website at www.mfandw.com to see what's available, or call (800) 401-1009. Great chefs who will be participating in luncheons, dinners, demonstrations and book signings include Andoni Luis Aduriz, Rick Bayless, Gerard Boyer, Angela Hartnett, Phillippe Legendre, Mark Miller, Bradley Ogden, Charles Palmer and Alice Waters. This is a very special event at a very special inn. Try to get into at least one event.

to write about their own personal experience of romance at the Sardine Factory: Perhaps an engagement, anniversary or simply a memorable romantic evening will be the theme; it's up to the writer. Every letter will be read and acknowledged.

Mail entries to The Sardine Factory, Attention: Gina Hinds at 765 Wave St., Monterey 93940, or by e-mail to ghinds@canneryrow. com.

If you're planning a romantic dinner, perhaps on Feb. 14, Cellar Master Marc Cutino has selected two special wines from the more than 30,000 bottles in The Sardine Factory's award-winning cellar. He suggests an affordably priced French Champagne, a 1985 Audoin de Dampierre Cuvée des Ambassadeurs, and for a sparkling wine, a 1998 J. Schram by Schramsberg, Calistoga, Napa Valley. Impress your dinner companion with these selections.

For information call (831) 373-3775, or visit the website at www.sardinefactory.com.

A REMINDER, as we draw closer to Passport Weekend, Monterey Wine Auction and Gala: This year's theme is "Life is a Cab-array of Fine Wines." This fun event, sponsored by the Monterey Growers and Vintners Association, takes place over three days: Feb. 18 - 20. Passports for $35 may be purchased and taken with you to any or all of the 20 participating wineries in Monterey County. They will be stamped as you taste wines and nibble on wine-appropriate hors d'oeuvres and, in some instances, listen to live music.

When you've completed your tour of the wineries, turn in your passport in exchange for chocolates, and you will be entered in a drawing for the grand prize of a Monterey Wine Country gift basket valued at more than $1,500.

The second part of the weekend takes place on Saturday at 6 p.m. at the picturesque Kendall-Jackson Wine Estates in Soledad, generally not open to the public. At the elegant dinner and auction, winemakers from all over Monterey County will host tables and pour their best wines paired with food. No need to worry about traveling home. Shuttle transportation is included in the ticket price of $150 per person and will board at the Monterey Marriott at 5 p.m., with a return trip after the dinner/auction. The auction items will consist of extraordinary wines, lifestyle packages and one-of-a-kind prizes. Proceeds will benefit the Central Coast Visiting Nurse Association and Hospice, and several worthy charities.

Combined passport and Monterey Wine Auction Gala tickets are sold at the reduced price of $175. Contact the MCVGA at (831) 375-9400, or visit the website at www.montereywines.org.

MANY READERS will remember Jacques and Janet Melac of Melac's Restaurant on Lighthouse, Pacific Grove, a number of years back. Now managing Rancho Cellars at the mouth of the valley, Carmel, the culinary couple will host a food and wine aficionado cruise for Silverseas Cruises July 22 - 29. They will be featured aboard a "Taste of France & Italy" cruise from Barcelona to Rome, with Jacques presenting wine lectures while Janet will give culinary demonstrations. Janet is a Cordon Bleu trained chef and will also prepare regional appetizers paired with wines selected by Jacques.

For information on the cruise, go to www.ranchocellars.com or call Michael Mastrocola at (831) 659-0151.

RESCUE

the Highlands Fire Zodiac crew and the Coast Guard cutter looked farther out in the bay. When it arrived about an hour-and-a-half after the initial call, the Coast Guard helicopter made multiple passes overhead.

Lifeguards and P.G. Ocean Rescue members recovered Murphy's scuba gear. But conflicting information complicated the search for Quinn. Liest said he saw no one other than Murphy enter the choppy water. And the vehicle Quinn was supposedly driving, a white pickup truck, could not be found parked near the beach, according to CDF battalion chief Steve Robertson, who was in charge of the rescue effort.

"We determined at that point that it seemed like there wasn't really a missing diver," Robertson said.

But Murphy insisted his diving buddy had entered the sea before him.

Officers also tried to reach Quinn by cell phone, but were unsuccessful, according to the sheriff's office. Officials called off the search at around 5:10 p.m.

"If we'd had a vehicle there and were sure there was another person, we would not have called it off and would have stayed there as long as possible," Robertson said.

State Parks ranger Chuck Bancroft was still following up on the case the next day and said he had yet to confirm Quinn's whereabouts.

Spirit of Jake Stock lives on in Sweet Thursday's sound

THE SWEET Thursday Jazz Band, featuring local pianist Bob Phillips, takes its name from the sequel to John Steinbeck's novel, "Cannery Row." The group, scheduled to perform at the KRML Jazz and Blues Company this Saturday, Feb. 5, captures the flavor of the early jazz sounds heard on the street immortalized by the Salinas born writer. Featuring former members of Jake Stock's Abalone Stompers, the group will play traditional, eclectic Dixie-style jazz, the music popularized by Jake and others on the Central Coast in the 1940s.

Phillips, Dixieland Monterey's Musician of the Year in 2002, will be joined by former Abalone Stompers alumni Alan O'Dea on tuba, drummer Jim LePine and Eddie Erickson on guitar and banjo; also performing will be an assortment of other local jazz luminaries including George Young on saxophone and clarinet, Carl Reiley on trumpet, Hart Smith on trombone, Mickey McPhillips on string bass and vocalist Pamela Forman.

Phillips began his musical career on the Central Coast during the '70s as a member of the Stompers back in the days when the group performed every Sunday afternoon at the Big Sur River Inn. O'Dea, whose "horn bass" anchored the group's sound for many years, is also a former Dixieland Monterey Musician of the Year, receiving the honor in 2004.

Music starts at 7:30 p.m. For reservations call (831) 624-6431.

Crispo highlights African art in Black History Month lecture

ARTIST/ART historian Dick Crispo will lecture briefly on the influence African art has had on modern art before showing a PBS/BBC documentary film on that subject.

At 7 p.m., Wednesday, Feb. 23, Crispo will launch his popular art lecture series for 2005 at the Carmel Art Association.

The 1996 documentary acknowledges the impact and importance of African art in influencing such acclaimed artists as Picasso, Matisse and Modigliani. Scenes shot in Dogon, a Bamana village, and the walled city of Djenne will provide a perspective on the function and role of art in Malian society. The film was written and directed by award-winning broadcaster, journalist and writer Aminatta Forna.

The lecture and film are offered in honor of Black History month. The event is free, and reservations are not required. The CAA is located on the west side of Dolores between Fifth and Sixth, Carmel-by-the-Sea. For information, call (831) 624-6176.

grooves (as well as his on stage antics), recently released an acoustic CD entitled, "Touch My Life." Tony Lindsay, cofounder of popular Bay Area band Spangalang, first toured with Carlos Santana in 1991 and can be heard on the 1992 release "Milagro," as well as on Santana's recent release, "Super Natural," for which he received eight Grammy awards. An in-demand session background singer, Lindsay has recorded with Al Jarreau, Steve Windwood, Teddy Pendergrass, Aretha Franklin and Lou Rawls.

Busta-Groove, a San Francisco Bay Area septet, is one of Northern California's hottest retro bands, playing hits from the '70s, '80s and '90s.

Mardi Gras celebrations scheduled for Fat Tuesday, Feb. 8, include popular zydeco band The Cachagua Playboys at Sly McFly's and Red Beans and Rice at Lollapalooza on Alvarado Street. Party starts at both venues at 9 p.m.

And in Santa Cruz, the 30th anniversary celebrations keep on keepin' on for the Kuumbwa Jazz Center, the venerable Central Coast jazz venue. Appearing at the Santa Cruz Civic Center on Monday, Feb. 7, jazz giants Herbie Hancock, Michael Brecker and Roy Hargrove all perform in the festivities. Music starts at 8 p.m. For info and reservations, call (831) 420-5260.

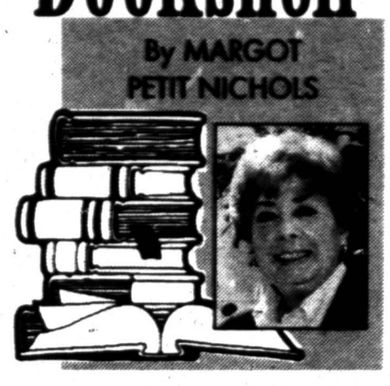
TWO NEW books that tell readers how to turn their lives into success stories were brought to our newsroom desk this week, both full of enthusiasm and optimism despite the world's tattered edges and uncertain tomorrows.



Peter Burwash of Carmel is one of the world's best tennis coaches, having instructed and played in more than 134 countries. He is also a motivational speaker.

In his latest book, "Improving the Landscape of Your Life," Burwash sets out 12 habits for succeeding in life and understanding what true happiness is. There is an emphasis on altruism.

Burwash's is a sort of practical wisdom that grew out of life experiences. The book that encompasses this knowledge is a smooth, enlightening read.

The small 125-page hardcover, published by Torchlight Publishing, Badger, Calif., sells for $12.95, and is available at most bookstores.

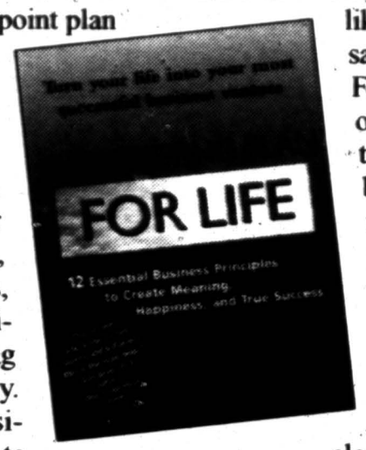
has penned a book similar to Burwash's in that it is another 12-point plan for life — but directed at business. The 186-page softcover book, "A Marketing Plan for Life," retails for $15.95. Fried's plan, too, takes in values, risk-taking, responsibility, and the sharing of time and energy. While it is a businesslike approach to life, Fried makes it clear that step one is "figure out who you are, and what you want to become." From this premise, the rest follows, with Fried with you every step of the journey.



Fried said that he has already given 65 interviews on radio and TV, mostly on drive-time talk shows, but readers can see and hear him in person next week.

An evening with the author is planned for 7 p.m., Monday, Feb. 7, at the Thunderbird Bookshop, Barnyard Shopping Village, Carmel. The talk is free, and a booksigning will follow. Call (831) 624-1803 for information.

OLD CAPITOL Books, 639 Lighthouse Ave., Monterey, is closing after 21 years, we're very sorry to report. The close-out sale started Tuesday. Artie and Lee Early founded it with current owner Cristiana St. Johns in 1984; St. John bought the bookstore two years ago.

"Business has been slowing down, and we've been holding on, hoping for the economy to improve," St. Johns said. "I would like to encourage customers to come in and save money. Everything is half-price until Feb. 14, then prices go down to 75 percent off. We're going to sell everything down to the bare walls," she said. Almost all the books are used, with the exception of a number of art books. "We have old collectibles, and a hugh, huge history section," St. Johns said. Cookbooks are in abundance, too, as well as all the other categories found in top bookshops.

"There used to be eight used bookstores in Monterey, but some have closed now. It was unique and something to be proud of," St. Johns said. "I'm going to have to find something else to do." Then she added wistfully, "I'm sure going to miss everybody."

SURVIVORS

"For awhile, it was really tense and sad around here," said Georgia Duke, grandmother of Brittany Downing. She sweated out the ordeal at the Downing household in Carmel along with Brittany's parents, Paula and Sam Downing. Her father is CEO of Salinas Valley Memorial Hospital.

"I was scared, knowing they were out there rocking around and had lost power," said LeValley, who had been monitoring the ship's progress on the Internet. She didn't realize it at the time, but the greatest risk for a ship without power is that, if it ends up parallel to the large swells, it could capsize.

"They were sending the Coast Guard boat from Alaska, and aircraft were on their way because there was a period of time when they thought they would have to evacuate," LeValley said.

"It was scary, because Brittany and the other kids didn't know what was going to happen," Duke said. "They had to stand by lifeboats."

The ship's crew advised passengers to don warm clothing and life vests and then directed them to the upper levels of the ship, where they were separated into groups of men and women, according to LeValley.

"They were being batted around from one side to the other, which was pretty terrifying," she said.

Thirty-second call

Fortunately, the crew was able to use emergency steering to keep the bow pointed into the waves. Within an hour, they had also regained control of one engine, according to the Coast Guard, which canceled two of the three heavy aircraft but kept one on scene to monitor the ship.

With e-mail and cell phone systems on board the ship disabled, LeValley received a half-minute call from her daughter via a satellite phone that night.

"She said she was terrified, but at least I heard her voice," LeValley said. "She didn't say anything like, 'Come get me. I want to come home!' and I think she might have said that if she felt that way."

Downing also called her parents and her grandmother to let them know she was OK. "I am so proud of her and so thankful she's safe," Duke said.

"There were a couple of kids on board with satellite phones and the captain had one, so the kids were sharing, LeValley said.

When each student was granted five minutes to use the ship's phone, Evynn called again to further reassure her mother.

By 8 p.m., power was restored to a second engine and the ship was underway at 12-14 knots, close to its usual speed. According to Semester at Sea officials, all four engines are only used during high-speed travel; the ship typically runs on two.

Initially planning to head to Midway Island for assessment and repairs, the ship's captain ultimately chose Hawaii, and classes on board resumed Jan. 27. The Coast Guard continued monitoring the ship's progress and stationed an aircraft at Midway while keeping the cutter on track to meet with the ship.

Picking up the pieces

"The kids have been very helpful in trying to clean up the boat, including the baby grand piano that was thrown across the boat and broken," LeValley said. Together they restored the library and other rooms as they attempted to return to normal routines, including a hot meal in the cafeteria.

Semester at Sea administrators also reported the two injured crew members would be checked out in Hawaii.

The ship arrived at Honolulu, Hawaii, Monday afternoon, and students were provided field trip options for the next four days while its condition is evaluated and repairs are made. The Explorer has continued to serve as their lodging.

LeValley said the Downings flew to Hawaii to meet their daughter in port, but she decided to remain behind due to work obligations.

"If my daughter had said, 'I want you to be here,' I would have been there in a heartbeat," LeValley said. "But she's pretty resilient."

As CEO of Salinas Valley Memorial Hospital, Sam Downing is used to dealing with tragic circumstances. But it's different when it's your own daughter.

"My mom and dad were waiting on the pier when we got to Hawaii," said Downing. "And the first thing I did was go out on deck and wave to them." Their reunion was delayed for hours while the students went through U.S. Customs.

The Explorer had been bound for Japan when the wave hit, and due to the delays, schedule visits to that country and South Korea have been canceled. Semester at Sea organizers may fly students to planned ports in China or Vietnam if the ship cannot be repaired quickly.

After a few days' break, classes will resume on the ship Monday. And Downing says she'll definitely continue on the voyage, if it's able to resume.

"My brothers wanted me to come home, but my parents encouraged me to continue," Downing said. "They know how much I want to."

LeValley said her daughter wants to stick with the adventure she and Downing, who have been friends for years and graduated from CHS in 2003, had planned and worked for since last summer.

"I'm proud of them. I think they'll be different people after going through this," she said. "Not many kids have the opportunity to face their mortality in that way."

Boogie boarder rescued in rough surf

PINE CONE STAFF REPORT

A 17-YEAR-OLD Carmel High School student was pulled from rough winter seas off Carmel Beach by a two-man California State Parks lifeguard team Friday after she was knocked off her boogie board.

Carmel Valley resident Michelle Meyer and a friend were in the bay just before 4 p.m. when Meyer was swept off her board and out into the bay around 3:50 p.m. Witnesses told Carmel police officers and firefighters that the girl was in the water 300 to 400 yards off shore.

The Monterey County Sheriff's Dive Team, Pacific Grove Ocean Rescue, U.S. Coast Guard and Carmel Regional Fire Ambulance responded. California State Parks lifeguards arrived with a wave runner and headed for Meyer, grabbed her and brought her back to shore, according to the Carmel Fire Department. Only four minutes elapsed between the time they entered and exited the water.

On the beach, medics determined Meyer was suffering severe hypothermia from her prolonged exposure to the chilly ocean water, despite wearing a wet suit, and she was taken to Community Hospital via ambulance. She was later released.

Michelle Meyer is wrapped in blankets after being rescued from the ocean off Carmel Beach last Friday. She was knocked from her boogie board by large, storm-driven waves.

Businessman claims new policies restrict access to public information

By CHRIS COUNTS

MONTEREY COUNTY Assessor Steve Vagnini believes recent changes in the way his office does business will lead to better public access to information and greater administrative efficiency.

But Gary Bailey views those same changes as restricting public access to information and a potential end to his livelihood.

Bailey is the owner of Abstract Information Service, a business that collects real estate sales data primarily for real estate professionals. His compilations of real estate sales also appear in newspapers, including The Carmel Pine Cone. For 15 years, the Pacific Grove resident has had liberal access to the files at the assessor's office, where he has scanned original documents and compiled data for a publication he sells.

Now Bailey stands on the other side of the counter as a customer who is required to pay the assessor's office $2 per page for printed copies of documents or subscribe to a series of compact discs that could cost him as much as $600 a month.

"Does the public want the government to go into business selling information about the public?" asks Bailey, who believes the assessor's office is overcharging for its services.

Vagnini disagreed with Bailey's claims and said his agency charges fees that are competitive with agencies in other counties.

"We're just trying to provide the best public service possible," he said. "By law all we can do is recapture our expenses. Nobody else has complained."

'People in California want more openness in government. If you restrict access to information, you open the door to mischief.'

— Gary Bailey

In an effort to make it easier for the public to obtain records, the assessor's office is selling compact discs. Bailey is concerned the agency is catering to big companies compiling information about the public for marketing purposes.

"The government is not real good about protecting the privacy of its citizens," said Bailey.

Vagnini insisted his agency is not trying to accommodate information banks.

"Mr. Bailey wants it both ways," Vagnini said. "He wants access, but he doesn't want these big companies to have access."

Bailey also doesn't like the new policy that prohibits him from viewing original documents.

"To deny the public the right to inspect an original document is a disturbing trend," Bailey said. "You can learn a lot more from an original document than a poorly-copied scan."

Vagnini, though, said it's not practical to allow public access to original documents, which are generally returned to clients after they have been scanned.

"If everyone wanted to see an original, it would be very challenging for us," he said. He said the new policy of restricting public access to original copies "gives us much more control over the process."

Where Vagnini sees control, Bailey sees secrecy.

"People in California want more openness in government," he said. "If you restrict access to information, you open the door to mischief."

Bailey believes the access he once had to records provided a great benefit to the public. As an example, he cites a $140 million real estate scam he uncovered by his routine viewing of documents at the assessor's office. He stumbled across a "suspicious pattern" of inflated real estate transactions. Sale prices for 10 local homes were inflated by a Beverly Hills company to fool lenders into making loans that were much larger than necessary.

The scam would have been detected, Bailey said, "if the assessor's office was doing its job."

Vagnini said his staff would have eventually uncovered the scam.

Bailey believes the assessor's office imposed its new policies because the exposure of the real estate scam embarrassed the agency.

"I don't think I made any friends in the assessor's office," he said. "If I had minded my own business, the scam would probably still be going on and everybody would be happy."

Vagnini said the new policies his agency has implemented are nothing Bailey should take personally.

"We're just trying to improve the way we do business," he said. "it's a delicate balance. We're walking a fine line."

CHS grad dies in snowboard accident

BRIAN JAMES Love, a former Carmel High School student, was killed Feb. 1 when he struck a tree while snowboarding at Wintergreen Resort in Virginia, reported The Daily Progress, a Charlottesville newspaper.

A 2001 graduate of Carmel High School, Love was just months away from earning his B.A. in neuroscience and psychology from the University of Virginia.

"He was a very high achieving academic student," said Carol Wood, U.V. spokeswoman. Family friend Victoria Marr of Yankee Point, who spent Thanksgiving with Love and his family, told The Pine Cone the 22-year-old was an outstanding young man, well known around Carmel. His mother, Susan Love, is a teacher at River School and active in the Big Sur Marathon. His father is Jim Love of Monterey.

The younger Love was captain of the university's snowboarding team. In January, Love took first place in a competition at Sugar Mountain in North Carolina.

"He was the most vibrant person I knew," said teammate Alexis Day "He was incredibly outgoing, and always the first to extend his friendship to new members on the team."

The team was practicing at Wintergreen Resort when the accident occurred. There were no witnesses. Love never regained consciousness and died before he could be airlifted off the mountain.

A private memorial service was held on Feb. 2 at St. Thomas Aquinas Catholic Church in Charlottesville, according to the university newspaper, The Cavalier Daily.

Flowers with black ribbons were placed on the doors to Brown College, his former residence. A candlelight vigil was also held by friends at Hereford College.

AIRLIFT

Valley Medical Center.

A second CalSTAR helicopter landed there hours later, when a worker driving a Bobcat overturned it and fell from a 15-foot-high retaining wall near the Highlands Inn.

A list of criteria called the MAP system is used to decide when an air ambulance is needed, according to firefighter Jake Hess.

MAP considers the mechanism of injury, such as the crushed car or the overturned Bobcat, if the injury is anatomical, such as broken bones or severe lacerations, and if there's a dangerous physiological condition.

"If you come across someone in a vehicle wreck or who fell from a roof, and their blood pressure is very, very low — 40/20 — that would be a physiological reason," Hess explained. Patients with at least two of the three MAP criteria are rushed to the nearest trauma center in an air ambulance.

Ambulance rates go up again

By MARY BROWNFIELD

FOLLOWING THE county's lead, the three-member Carmel Regional Fire Ambulance board — which provides ambulance service to Carmel and Carmel Valley — voted Jan. 20 to raise rates 4.13 percent.

"CRFA has historically adjusted its ambulance rates to match increases granted by the county" to other ambulance companies, Carmel Valley Fire Chief Sidney Reade wrote in her report to the board.

"In the past, with one very notable exception, we've always tracked the county's increase, which is based on Consumer Price Index factors," said Gerard Rose, a Carmel city councilman who sits on the CRFA board with Carmel Valley Fire directors Bob Rice and Pete Garneau. "And the figure they used this year was 4.13 percent."

'I have been very reluctant — in fact, I have refused — to buckle under to other considerations, like what the market will bear.'

— Gerard Rose

County health director Len Foster approved the county's increase Jan. 6, and it took effect three days later. The base rate for that service moved from $1,008 to $1,049.59; per-mile charges from $23.50 to $24.47; Code-3 emergency response from $65.27 to $67.96; and oxygen from $90 to $93.71. Charges for standing by, which decrease with the number of days' notice and ranged from $91.37 to $182.72 per hour, also increased.

Rates in Carmel are notably lower. The new base rate in town and in Carmel Valley increased to $812.87 plus $13.72 per mile ($67.97 if lights and sirens are used); oxygen administration will now cost $65.58, with standby charges reaching $95.15 per hour.

"I have been very reluctant — in fact, I have refused — to buckle under to other considerations, like what the market will bear," Rose said. "And fortunately, my other directors have agreed with me."

City ambulance costs stable

The City of Carmel, which pays for an ambulance and its accompanying paramedic and EMT to be stationed at Carmel Fire Department, heavily subsidizes CRFA because many costs go unrecovered from Medicare, Medicaid and insurance companies.

"Much of the income that CRFA derives from services comes via government programs, and there are write-offs that result in there being very little consistency between the rates charged and what we actually get," Rose said of ambulance service revenues.

Last year, the city paid $378,796 to cover CRFA costs — $128,796 more than budgeted in 2003/2004.

In its 2004/2005 budget, the council allocated $378,796 to CRFA. According to city clerk Karen Crouch, the city has paid the agency $347,497 this fiscal year, covering most of the CRFA bills expected this year.

"I'm hoping we can keep it to about the same as last year," Rose said.

He also said CRFA is benefitting more from the mutual aid calls it runs outside its jurisdiction when AMR is not close enough to get there first.

"We have increased our service on behalf of areas or calls where the county's ambulance system can't respond," Rose said. "We do make money on those."

PETEY KASTROS, 8-1/2, could serve as a spokesdog for any weight loss program around: He's gone from 109 lbs. to 69 lbs. in less than a year and a half, and he owes it all to fiber.

Mitch and Amber Kastros adopted the roly-poly Petey in Long Beach, where he had been abandoned. At that point, Petey could only waddle for five minutes on an outing before exhaustion set in, due to his excessive avoirdupois.

Back home in Carmel, his new mom and dad put him on a high fiber diet and the weight melted away. Now Petey runs and plays with the other dogs on Carmel Beach, full of pep and vigor.

Petey is part Lab, part retriever, has the coat of a golden Lab and the ears of a puppy. It's almost impossible to keep one's hands off his ears: They cry out for gentle pinching, crumpling and stroking, and he thrives on the attention.

At home, Petey has three indoor siblings, all cats: Lodie, Oliver and Gracie. Lodie is only seven months old and has taken such a fancy to Petey, he won't leave him alone. But Petey is taken with Lodie, too, so they have become best buds and even sleep together in Mom and Dad's bed. Dad says he sometimes wakes up with one foot on the floor, having had his space partially usurped by the cuddling duo.

Petey has taken over duties as the alpha male: When all three cats escaped from the back door one day, Petey barked and barked until Mom Amber answered the hue and cry and Petey herded the cats back indoors.

We said he was part retriever.

DESAL

The ad was in the papers one time only, and 517 responses is very impressive," said Agha. "People are fed up with Cal-Am, especially with the big rate increases it is asking for, and the public would like to see a change."

Cal-Am general manager Steve Leonard acknowledged that his company's poll also unearthed some "historical issues of mistrust" of Cal-Am among its customers, but said the bad feelings didn't extend to the company's ability to build a desal plant to solve the Peninsula's perennial water woes.

"They have reservations about our company but they don't have any reservations about our ability to satisfy the water needs of the area," Leonard said. "On a technological level, we're way ahead."

Another important conclusion of the Cal-Am survey: A vast majority of the public wants a desal plant built. According to Decision Research, three quarters of Monterey Peninsula voters support a desal plant to serve them, while "just 15 percent wouldn't support desalination anywhere in Monterey County."

Other findings of Cal-Am's survey:

- Voters are far more concerned about developing water supplies than about the risk of runaway growth. "Fully two-thirds of voters agree a desalination plant would provide a desperately needed source of water, compared to just 20 percent who fear that the danger of increased growth is too high," the survey said. "Furthermore, two-thirds of voters agree there has been too much emphasis on conservation, and not enough on developing additional supplies of water."
- Two-thirds of voters also believe the desal plant would help the environment. "They're saying, 'We want water, but we also want the river back,'" Leonard concluded. "Our project will provide an big environmental gain for a modest environmental impact."
- A large majority of voters say they're comfortable with private ownership of a desal plant. But while Cal-Am's survey found the company's Coastal Water Project has plenty of backing among the public, del Piero said his agency's plant has made more progress toward actual construction.

"Our site is practically cleared and we're going to be awarding a contract for the EIR within the next two weeks," del Piero said.

'They have reservations about our company but they don't have any reservations about our ability to satisfy the water needs of the area.' — Steve Leonard

And he cautioned that too much delay in making a decision whether Monterey Peninsula water users will subscribe to the PSM plant could end up with them being left out, since only one desal plant is likely to be approved.

"The amount of water we can produce will be limited by environmental considerations, and those folks who are interested in participating early on are going to receive the benefit," he said. "Those who hold out could end up with nothing."

SENIOR LIVING

MILESTONES

GARDNER CHASE SCHETTER, a 50-year resident of Carmel and retired general contractor, died Jan. 11. He was 88.

Mr. Schetter was a native of Marshfield, Oregon. His grandfather, Frederick, owned telegraph companies in San Francisco that merged into Western Union, and his father, Otto, was manager of the first Coos Bay, Oregon, Western Union office. Thus, as a young man, Mr. Schetter delivered many telegrams.

After completing his schooling, he worked in a lumber mill near Coos Bay and developed a keen eye for recognizing quality lumber. In 1942 he married Lucille Schetter who, during their 26-year marriage, gave him two sons. She died in 2001.

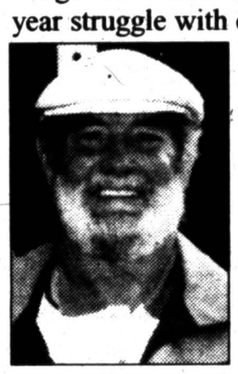
Mr. Schetter served in the U.S. Army from 1943 to 1946. His second wife, Diane, preceded him in death in 1988.

In his career as a home builder, Mr. Schetter designed, remodeled and built many homes in the Monterey Bay area and along the west coast. As a true craftsman, he was able to carry out all phases of construction, from foundation to high quality finish work. One of his larger projects was the completion of the massive home overlooking the Pacific south of Big Sur called Hill of the Hawk.

He is survived by his sons, David of Irvine and Charles of Malibu; five grandchildren; four great-grandchildren and his former companion, Alice Parcel of Carmel.

Memorials are suggested to the Carmel Foundation.

RONALD NOAH TUGWELL, 70, best known as "Tugs" to friends and coworkers, died Jan. 12 after a three-year struggle with cancer.



Mr. Tugwell was born in Los Angeles, and following his school years he undertook a tour of duty with the U.S. Navy, which sparked a passion for travel. His Navy experience also launched a 25-year career with Litton Industries and GTE Sylvania, where he applied his expertise in electronic installations on nuclear submarines — work that took him from coast to coast.

Mr. Tugwell and his family moved to the Monterey Peninsula in 1988, when he began a second career for the next 10 years as master electrician at the Monterey Bay Aquarium. His love of British sports cars, specifically MGs, inspired a 15 year involvement with local car clubs and international fellowship with like enthusiasts. Numerous road trips in his "driver" took him up into Canada and across the United States. A decade of volunteering at the AT&T Pebble Beach National Pro-Am Golf Tournament made "Tugs" a familiar face to locals and visitors.

He leaves behind his wife of 30 years, the former Niki Budd, Carmel resident since 1946; daughters Laura of Carmel Valley and Tracy of Merced; stepson Paul Wilkin of Carmel Valley; three grandchildren and a great-granddaughter.

ALEXANDER B. CULVER of Carmel, a former 52-year resident of Concord, died Jan. 13. He was 85.

Mr. Culver was born in Springfield, Ill., and was a U.S. Army veteran of World War II. He was retired from management in Owens-Illinois Glass Company after 33 years of service.

He is survived by his wife of 62 years, Mary Jane of Carmel; daughters Marylanne of Oakland and Julie of Carmel; a brother, Edward of New Mexico; and many nieces and nephews.

Memorials are suggested to Catholic Charities, 485 Church St., Monterey, CA 93940.

CLAY DAULTON HATCH, 73, of Pebble Beach, a great-grandson of Gold Rush pioneers, who operated the Bookworm bookstore in Carmel, died Jan. 17.

A native of Modesto, he attended the University of California at Santa Barbara and graduated from Stanford University. Mr. Hatch worked as a stockbroker in San Francisco before serving in the U.S. Army during the Korean conflict.

He moved to Carmel in the early 1960s, and opened the Bookworm with his friend, Gabriel Solis. He continued to manage his real estate and other investments.

Mr. Hatch traveled widely to Europe, Asia, Hawaii and the South Seas, including travel on the Concorde and QE2.

His grandfather, Ephriam Hatch, was born in Vermont and came to California in 1850 where he mined enough gold to buy horses and a wagon to supply the mining camps. He acquired large parcels of farm and ranch land in Central California.

His grandparents and parents continued the family heritage and history with farming, ranching and community involvement in Central California. The properties in the Modesto area became known as The Hatch Ranch and were managed by Mr. Hatch's father.

He appreciated and honored his family history with his membership in the Society of California Pioneers, a charter member of the Founding Grant Society of the Leland Stanford Junior University, a charter member of the Cowboy Hall of Fame and the San Francisco Palace of Fine Arts Refurbishment Committee, and other community contributions. Mr. Hatch was also a member of the Beach and Tennis Club at Pebble Beach and the Metropolitan Club of San Francisco.

He is survived by his cousins, Sue Hatch Wilson and James Warde Hatch, both of Santa Cruz; Jeffery Hatch-Miller of Arizona; and Antoinette Hatch Carver of Belmont.

Burial will take place in the family plot at Lakewood Memorial Park, Hughson.

It is suggested that any memorial contribution be sent to The Clay Daulton Hatch Scholarship Fund, Stanford University Office of Planned Giving, 326 Galvez St., Stanford, CA 94305, or to the donor's favorite charity.

CHRISTINE IRENE HOBBS, a Pebble Beach homemaker, died Jan. 28. She was 46.

A native of Toronto, Canada, she made her home in Pebble Beach for the last two and one-half years.

She is survived by her husband, Cmdr. Tim Hobbs; her mother, Clementine Bodnar; and her brother, Bohdan, all of Ottawa, Canada.

Burial will take place in Parklawn Cemetery, Toronto. Contributions are suggested to the Samaritan's Purse, International Relief, Box 3000, Boone, N.C., 28607; www.samaritanpurse.org.

OPINION

Editorial

Runoff follies

WHEN MOST people heard the news that state officials ordered Carmel not to let any stormwater run into Carmel Bay, they laughed. It was a pained laugh, though. Because there's nothing funny about the government completely losing its mind.

Our ocean is precious, of course. Nearly everyone wants to see it preserved in its current, nearly pristine state, and reasonable measures to keep excess amounts of obnoxious chemicals out of water that runs through the city's storm drains are certainly in order. That's why we supported the city's proposed stormwater assessment fee when it was on the ballot in the fall of 2003. The voters turned it down, unfortunately — but not because they like pollution. They just wanted the city to foot the bill for the rather modest proposed stormwater cleanup program out of general city tax revenues. But Carmelites need not feel inadequate when it comes to stewardship of the environment.

In fact, almost every populated part of this state envies the Monterey Peninsula for its carefully preserved natural setting. Few places can boast the wildlife that populates local shores and forests, much less the clean air and water and plentiful food that allow our deer, raccoons, sea lions, harbor seals, sea otters, sea stars, sea gulls, pelicans, hawks and other creatures to thrive.

And why is this so? Partly because the human population of the Monterey Peninsula is rather small. The Carmel River, for example, drains an area occupied by no more than 30,000 souls. Contrast that to the Sacramento River, which flows through several large cities and hundreds of suburbs on its way to San Francisco Bay. And by the time that river's waters reach the Pacific Ocean, perhaps 10 million people have contributed something (noxious) to its contents.

Likewise the Los Angeles River — if you can call it a river. The water in this concrete channel flows through one of the most densely population regions in the United States. And their stuff, as we all know, goes downhill.

Is it too much to ask that, before they start imposing a zero-tolerance policy on this already conscientious community, state water quality officials make at least a bit of progress elsewhere?

The newsworthiness of prayer

NUMEROUS READERS thanked this newspaper for its nonjudgmental reporting of the story of young Matthew Scholink, whose severe head injuries in a car crash near Del Monte Center left him in a coma and near death for 13 days. Responding to his desperate struggle for life, his family and friends — and plenty of strangers — launched a prayer marathon at the hospital, in their homes and in churches, asking God to save Matthew's life. And when it was saved, they gave God the credit. And we reported their efforts and their beliefs straightforwardly.

In the big city newspapers, where phrases such as "born again Christian" are considered political epithets, it sometimes seems the only religion not considered legitimate is Christianity. The Carmel Pine Cone does not endorse any particular religion or any individual's beliefs. But we think it's fine that they have them, even if they come from the Bible.

Farr 'misses the point'

Dear Editor,

Once again Congressman Sam Farr misses the point and just doesn't get it (letters, Jan. 21). Why he cannot or will not stand up and say the ADA law is flawed and needs to be fixed defies all logic.

His suggestion that small businesses fight lawsuits filed against them is simply ludicrous. Hello? Earth to Sam Farr! The average small businessperson does not have the funds to finance a court fight. Farr's attitude is typical of many: If you're in business, you must have a checkbook that never runs out of money. In reality, nothing could be further from the truth.

Farr needs to re-enter (or enter) the real world. I think he is passing up a wonderful opportunity to at least take a stand. Then again, that may be too much to ask.

Rich Wise, Carmel Valley

Farr 'out of touch'

Dear Editor,

Sam Farr's response to the Pine Cone editorial concerning the Americans with Disabilities Act demonstrates just how out of touch Farr is with his constituents. He claims, in essence, "Hey, it's not my job," when he says it's really the California law that is bad and, of course, he has no influence in California.

The ADA is a federal law, Mr. Farr, and it's badly flawed. Sure, the state laws come into play also, but are you telling us that a strong federal congressman couldn't exert some leadership and make things happen? One need look no further than Fort Ord to conclude that Farr isn't a strong leader. He's a follower who takes the easiest path to re-election.

Farr's other excuse for inaction is that there is opposition to changing the law, so why bother to try? With that attitude, nothing would ever change for the better. As long as Sam Farr is our representative, don't expect much leadership. He might lose some votes by actually being out in front on something. It's always easier to criticize real leaders than to be a leader.

Instead of taking action himself, what is the solution Farr offers our businesses? "I recommend that businesses fight these bogus lawsuits..." Thanks a lot for that pearl of wisdom! Clint Eastwood can afford to do that (and I'm certainly grateful that he did), but most mom-and-pop businesses can't. It's not federal money, Mr. Farr; it is real money that these businesspeople have worked hard to earn.

In its current form, the ADA law encourages parasitic lawyers to prey on small businesses. Thanks for nothing, Mr. Farr.

TOT is a good solution

Dear Editor,

The ballot measure for the hotel tax was authored as a good solution to the city's budget crisis which has failed to be resolved.

These are the facts:

- The proper number of signatures was collected to make the measure valid.
- The TOT (hotel tax) is one of three major sources of city revenue. It is very dependable and the entire amount generated stays in Carmel. It is not portioned out to the county or state as are other revenues.
- The 2 percentage-point increase, which is about the cost of a latte ($2 on $100) will give the city about $700,000 every year to maintain and improve our village.
- It is clear that the city needs the money. The ballot measure creates specific allocations to run our daily government and cover amenities and necessities enjoyed by residents and visitors alike.
- Carmel maintains services comparable to a city five times its size in order to accommodate tourists.
- The existing hotel tax has no sunset clause, so why would a sunset clause be imposed on an increase to the tax?

Carmel residents, we ask you to vote yes with us in support of the 2 percentage point increase hotel tax increase.

'Great community concern'

Dear Editor,

Thank you for your front page report last week on the Carmel Convalescent Hospital situation. Not only is the building complex of historic and possibly architectural significance to the city, the long-term skilled nursing beds in this facility have helped to meet a serious need on the Peninsula. Ideally, the buildings should be renovated and again made usable as a home for frail elderly members of our community. This apparently will require considerable new financing and management skills, as well as support from Carmel citizens who feel the project is an important asset.

I hope you will continue to follow negotiations regarding the hospital property as a matter which is of great community concern.

Jean Esary, Carmel

Doris Day asks for help

Dear Editor,

On Tuesday, Feb. 22, our national nonprofit Doris Day Animal Foundation will join with tens of thousands of volunteers in hundreds of communities across the country to mark the 11th annual "Spay Day USA."

It started with a simple question back in 1995, when a few of us were talking about how to translate the fact that spaying and neutering was the easiest and best way to solve the pet overpopulation crisis, when an estimated 12 million cats and dogs were being euthanized each year simply because there were not enough good homes for them.

"Why don't we have a Spay Day to encourage people to have their companion animals spayed or neutered?" we asked. We decided it could be a grassroots effort, talking to people we knew, contacting vets, city officials and the media, hoping it would grow beyond a one-time event. We might be able to save thousands of animals, we hoped.

To say it worked is an understatement. Now, 10 years later, Spay Day USA has been responsible for spaying or neutering more than one million companion animals nationwide, helping reduce the number of pets euthanized from 12 million to three or four million annually. At that rate, pet overpopulation and the financial and emotional costs that accompany the problem will soon be history.

Everyone can help on Spay Day. We have information at our website, www.ddaf.org. We plan to set another record this year, and look forward to having more volunteers help with the cause.

Good people

Dear Editor,

On the evening of Dec. 23, I realized that I had misplaced my platinum, gold and diamond ring! I spent the entire New Year's weekend tearing through my house, car and shop, with no luck.

Monday morning I decided to retrace my steps from the previous Thursday. After asking at the deli, bakery, post office and bank, I still had not found it. Everyone was concerned, but they couldn't help.

As a last resort, I decided to go to the police station. The very kind sergeant was quite helpful. After giving him an acceptable description, he gave me my ring from their safe!

Apparently a young man who works in downtown Carmel found the ring on a Dolores Street sidewalk and turned it in. I truly appreciate his honesty and he certainly reinforces my confidence in the basic good in people.

"Carmel Legends"

Some years ago, maybe 10, we were walking along 5th Street between San Carlos and Mission, when we suddenly heard a gentle "Hello." The sound came came from behind a screen door in a tiny house, the worse for wear, just past the Shell station. We approached the door (which never opened) and met FAIRY BIRD, a small black lady who had lived there for over 50 years. Her house, situated as it was in downtown Carmel was, in truth, a shack; but it was much coveted by nearby landowners. She lived there alone for many years. When she died at nearly 90, not long after our only encounter, her house and lot were the object of spirited bidding in an estate sale. We learned that she had once been the cook for Charlie Chaplin, that her husband Tom had been a popular handyman in Carmel, and that she was a handylady for several Carmel families. While cleaning up her house, her executor found a great many Social Security checks hidden in the pages of newspapers and magazines she saved, never cashed. With him we helped open her safety deposit box and found...a gold watch and two $2 bills. FAIRY'S place is now occupied by Casanova's Restaurant. Approach it with some reverence.

MAYOR OBJECTS TO SPRINT ANTENNA ON SUNSET ROOF

By MARY BROWNFIELD

CARMEL CITY Council members sparred over a proposed lease with Sprint PCS Tuesday, but it wasn't about the money.

The agreement, which would have cost the wireless company $1,000 a month to put high-tech equipment on the roof of Sunset Center, went unsigned after Mayor Sue McCloud objected to the design.

"We spent so much time working on this theater to keep it exactly the way it was, and this is not the way it was," she said, specifically taking exception to a triangle-shaped screen that would be placed on the front of one of the center's peaks to shield equipment behind it.

In his staff report, city administrator Rich Guillen told the council the design would have no aesthetic impact to the theater, but McCloud said, "I really think we're making a mistake to make a change of an architectural detail that is quite large that has never been there before."

The historic preservation committee recommended denial of the design, which calls for one antenna to be hidden behind a stucco plate and a grill below the eaves at the center's peak and the other painted to match the roof, because members felt wireless equipment had no place on such an important building. But the city's preservation consultant said the proposal meets federal standards for historic buildings.

The theater had been reconstructed from new materials, so even though it looks like the former building, consultant Leslie Dill said its "fabric" is not considered historic and could therefore be added to as Sprint proposed.

Will an antenna hidden behind a stucco plate and a grill below the eaves at the peak of Sunset's roof mar the historic building?

The planning commission agreed with the consultant and voted to approve the design last December.

McCloud said she could not understand how the planning commission could have OK'd the project.

"I don't personally see how we can do this," she told Sprint PCS representative David Mebane after looking at photo simulations of the project. "You have to come up with some alternative."

Mebane said his company's designers placed the equipment where it would be least obtrusive and would be sensitive to the building's importance, but that moving it could block part of the signal and defeat the purpose of the project.

Other council members said they failed to see the cause of McCloud's concern, citing the planning process, but councilman Mike Cunningham said the design should be revisited.

"I think everybody's done their job," councilman Erik Bethel countered. "I don't think it affects the aesthetic appeal of the building."

Councilman Gerard Rose moved approval of the lease, which would net the city $1,000 a month plus a one-time fee of $30,000 in exchange for the Sunset Center space.

But when city attorney Don Freeman asked for some additional time to look over the latest draft of the lease and suggested Sunset Cultural Center Executive Director Jack Globenfelt would want to as well before his board meets on the matter, McCloud seized the opportunity to ask for a month-long delay on the vote. She asked Sprint to consider other design options.

"As a matter of respect, I will abide by your request, but I'm not happy about it," Rose conceded before reluctantly withdrawing his motion for approval.

GLOBENFELT

and business people flocked to meet him at a reception last week.

Every day reveals another nuance.

"It's a little like a kaleidoscope: You think you have the picture, and the next day, someone jiggles it and it changes just slightly," he said.

Universal issues

In New York, Globenfelt oversaw a 2,300-seat theater in an entertainment market that offered patrons countless choices every night of the week. His life and work in Carmel are radically different: He rarely goes unrecognized on the street already; he can walk to work in minutes, and his job is to fill Sunset's 718 seats in a less competitive and much smaller market.

'I try to be accessible to the patrons, whether they want to talk about ticket prices, or that the theater was too hot, or they didn't like a performance.'

— Jack Globenfelt

"The problems are pretty much the same, though," he said. "The artists' fees are high, and the costs of doing business and marketing are extraordinarily expensive."

Tapping into a changing audience is key to filling theater seats.

"The constituencies are different, and there are certain things they want to see," he said. "My stepchildren [Chloe and Chelsea, ages 11 and 15] probably would not go to a symphony orchestra. You have to be prepared for change."

While the symphony, the Bach Festival and other traditional classical presenters will still figure large in the Sunset Center lineup, some changes are already afoot.

Better marketing helped sell out two recent Performance Carmel shows — the National Acrobats of Taiwan and Natalie MacMaster — and Globenfelt has been lining up new talent for this spring, including a cabaret series of vocalists and musicians. "They emphasize the story content and the lyrics more than the music, and there's generally a great song component."

Weslia Whitfield will appear April 9, and on April 30, Andrea Marcovicci will perform "Andrea Sings Astaire."

"And I'll try to do some classic rock, maybe acoustical or slightly amplified," he said in a hint of things to come.

Open door policy

Globenfelt already has the habit of getting on stage prior to each performance to introduce himself and solicit ideas, questions or concerns from the audience.

"I try to be accessible to the patrons, whether they want to talk about ticket prices, or that the theater was too hot, or they didn't like a performance," he said.

He has also helped develop the center's website, which he predicted will be "the finest in Northern California, if not all of California," when it comes online Feb. 25.

He gave the Carmel City Council a sneak preview of www.sunsetcenter.org at its meeting Tuesday night. Borrowing expensive technology from Bass Hall in Ft. Worth, Texas, the site will offer not only online ticketing and a full schedule of events, but also photos of the stage from certain seats in the audience, a "Spur of the Moment" feature to woo last-minute visitors, descriptions of the center's presenting partners along with links to their websites, and searches by entertainment type, category and month.

Globenfelt said 25 percent to 65 percent of patrons purchase their tickets online. That allows people to book whenever the mood strikes, such as after hearing a radio spot or spying an ad in The Pine Cone at 3 a.m. on a Sunday, when a phone call to the box office would go unanswered.

The new executive director of Sunset Center has had to adjust his thinking on how to market a 718-seat auditorium in a tiny town after running a 2,300-seat theater in New York.

"We're all impulsive buyers," he said.

In creating the website and bringing a central box office online, Globenfelt said he's tried hard to articulate the benefits and address concerns of presenters accustomed to handling their own ticket sales.

"Sometimes it's hard to let go of the ways you've done things, and I think over time, they'll see the benefit of it," he said, "If people can come here to get tickets for everything, it will benefit everyone."

Outside Sunset, Globenfelt is looking forward to visits from his adult daughter and son, Sarah and Michael, as well as his grandson, Connor.

His fiancee, Lisa Zaharko, and her daughters, Chloe and Chelsea, will move west as soon as the details can be worked out.

He also anticipates visits from longtime friends from Fresno.

"When I went to my high school reunion and told them I was thinking about coming here, they all said, 'Now I can come visit you,'" he said.

NOTICE OF PUBLIC HEARING

LOCAL AGENCY FORMATION COMMISSION OF MONTEREY COUNTY

PURSUANT TO Government Code Section 56660, notice is hereby given that the Local Agency Formation Commission (LAFCO) of Monterey County will consider the following:

The proposed "Carmel Valley Fire Protection District Reorganization" (LAFCO file 04-04) would detach territory from a portion of the existing Carmel Valley Fire Protection District, form a new Fire Protection District, establish a Sphere of Influence for the new district and amend the Sphere of Influence of the existing district.

The present Carmel Valley Fire Protection District was created in 2000 by the consolidation of the Mid-Carmel Valley Fire Protection District (western portion of the valley) and the previous Carmel Valley Fire Protection District (eastern portion of the valley), with several subsequent annexations. The area proposed for detachment and formation is the eastern portion of the consolidated district. The boundaries of the area to be detached are the boundaries of the Carmel Valley Fire Protection District as they existed prior to consolidation, plus additional territory (Berta Ranch) that was recently annexed to the consolidated district.

The proposal is statutorily exempt from the California Environmental Quality Act (CEQA) Guidelines pursuant to Section 15270 (a), which states that CEQA does not apply to projects which a public agency rejects or disapproves.

The public hearing will be held on Monday, February 28, 2005 at 4:00 p.m. in the Board of Supervisors Chambers, Monterey County Courthouse, 240 Church Street, Salinas, California. All persons wishing to make presentations for or against the proposal will be heard. Information on the proposal is on file at the LAFCO office and may be examined by interested persons.

If a person or group contributes or expends $1,000 or more in support of or in opposition to a proposal before LAFCO, those contributions and expenditures must be disclosed. Additional information may be obtained at the County of Monterey Elections Department, 1370 South Main Street, Suite B, Salinas, CA 93901, phone number (831) 755-5085.

Carmel, P.G., Monterey offer shuttles to AT&T tournament

By MARY BROWNFIELD

GOLF FANS in town for the AT&T Pebble Beach National Pro-Am and locals who enjoy the event need not drive all the way to Fort Ord and ride buses into Del Monte Forest each day. In fact, businesses in Carmel, Pacific Grove and Monterey hope they won't. Chambers of commerce in the three cities will run shuttles to the tournament Feb. 10-13.

After hearing from Carmel Valley residents and visitors who wanted a shuttle too, the Carmel chamber — in conjunction with the Carmel Innkeepers Association — extended the route this year to include pickup and drop-off at the Community Church of the Monterey Peninsula on Carmel Valley Road next to Rancho Cañada.

"That's the biggest change from last year," according to executive director Monta Potter.

The Carmel Chamber of Commerce will have four shuttle buses running

See SHUTTLES page 6C

Locals can shuttle to the AT&T Pro-Am to catch a glimpse of celebrities chipping out of bunkers, the way Clint Eastwood did on 10 at Pebble in 2002. Or golf fans can use the shuttles to take a respite in the restaurants and shops of Carmel, Pacific Grove and Monterey.

from 6:30 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. Thursday, Feb. 10, through Sunday, Feb. 13. The downtown route will stop at several pickup and drop-off spots in Carmel, including at Ocean and Junipero in front of Carmel Plaza and on the east side of the Pine Inn on Lincoln Street between Sixth and Ocean avenues, every 20 minutes.

The outer route, which includes the community church, will leave there at 8 and 10 a.m. and leave the Pebble Beach Equestrian Center at 2 and 4 p.m. to return to the church Thursday through Saturday. The Carmel Valley shuttle service will not be available on Sunday.

To make the ride more enjoyable, volunteers will be on the buses to share local color and discuss Carmel's past and present, according to Potter.

Passes run $5 per day if purchased before Feb. 10 and $7 per day after the shuttle service begins. Tickets may be purchased at the chamber office on the west side of San Carlos Street between Fifth and Sixth avenues, at Carmel inns, at the Carmel Plaza shuttle stop and on the buses.

People parking their cars in town can do so for free in the city-owned Vista Lobos lot, located on Third Avenue between Torres and Junipero. Paid parking is also available at the Sunset Center lot on Eighth Avenue between Mission and San Carlos, and in the Carmel Plaza garage on Mission between Ocean and Seventh.

The shuttles barely paid for themselves last year, and Potter hopes for a repeat during the 2005 tournament. Last year, they provided almost 3,000 round-trip rides during the tournament's four days.

The service's affordability and flexibility should allow fans to shop and eat in Carmel when they're not watching golf, even if they arrived in the Forest by some other mode of transportation.

"They can buy a ticket in Pebble Beach and come into town and shop or eat lunch and then go back," she said. "We would love to have them do that."

Pacific Grove, Monterey service

Golf fans in Pacific Grove and Monterey won't be left out, as shuttles will also run from those cities Thursday through Sunday.

The Pacific Grove shuttle will pick up and drop off passengers at the Pacific Grove Museum of Natural History at Fountain and Forest every 15 minutes between 6:30 a.m. and 6 p.m. Tickets are available at the P.G. Chamber office located near the museum at Forest and Central and cost $5 per day or $15 for all four days. For more information, call the Pacific Grove Chamber at (831) 373-3304.

The Monterey Peninsula Chamber of Commerce trolleys, which cost $5 per day, will pick up and drop off passengers at the Cannery Row Garage and at Portola Plaza at the foot of Alvarado Street in downtown Monterey, both of which have ample parking.

Monterey trolley tickets can be purchased at www.mpcc.com or the chamber office at 380 Alvarado St. in Monterey or by calling 648-5360.

Without 1,800 volunteers, golf tournament would grind to a halt

By MARY BROWNFIELD

EVER SINCE Bing Crosby brought his Clambake tournament to Pebble Beach right after World War II, volunteers have served as its glue. Fifty years ago, they numbered around 100; this week's AT&T Pebble Beach National Pro-Am will depend on the help of 1,800 volunteers who travel from several western states.

"They're just such a combination of so many different personalities," said volunteer coordinator Juanita Russo, who works with the 25 committee chairmen who are responsible for every aspect of the tournament. "It's part of what I love about the job — some are very serious and intense, and some are so funny."

A few dozen of those dedicated volunteers have worked every tournament for more than 40 years.

Del Rey Oaks resident Dick Searle's first job was ticket selling. The year was 1947 — the tournament's first year in Pebble Beach — and the price of admission was $5.

"I was an apprentice electrician and had just gotten out of the service, and when the tournament came my dad said, 'Do you want to help?' and I said, 'Sure,'" he recalled. "I reported to the Pebble Beach gate and sold tickets."

Searle's father, Dan, was a close friend of Bing Crosby.

"He played golf with Bing all the time at Cypress and Pebble Beach, and he suggested one time they could have the tournament up here — move it from Rancho Santa Fe" where Crosby had started it in 1937, Searle said.

Del Rey Oaks resident Dick Searle (left), who has volunteered with the AT&T Pebble Beach National Pro-Am since Bing Crosby brought his Clambake tournament to Pebble Beach in 1947, fuels up at the Del Monte Grill with 20-year volunteer Will Avila of Monterey before undertaking some heavy lifting in preparation for this week's tournament.

Monterey Herald sportswriter Ted Durein and Dan Searle are credited with convincing Crosby to bring the tournament north after it was suspended during the war.

In the beginning, Cypress Point Club, Pebble Beach Golf Links and Monterey Peninsula Country Club hosted the tournament. Spyglass Hill replaced MPCC in 1968, and Poppy Hills took over from Cypress Point in 1991.

Technological advances

After selling tickets, the younger Searle helped out with scoring, and he fondly remembers Crosby and his efforts to make volunteering worthwhile.

"One time, I was flying down to Mexico, and he happened to be on the same plane," he said. "And he asked what he could do for the volunteers."

Searle told him they would appreciate having their photographs taken with Crosby — a request to which the actor readily agreed.

"He did that with anyone who wanted it," he said.

Bing Crosby died in October 1977 after finishing a round of golf in Spain. Nine years later, AT&T became the title sponsor of the famous pro-am tournament which by then had become the biggest event on the Monterey Peninsula calendar, a staple of local charity fundraising, and one of the nation's most popular golf tournaments, attracting millions of TV viewers who enjoyed watching the surf crashing on the sunny California coast from their snowbound homes. Searle's list of amusing anecdotes spans those eras.

"When we were using Cypress Point, Porky Oliver took a 22 on the 16th Hole," he said. "He wouldn't pick up."

Searle saw the scoring technology and accommodations change over the years.

"It started out with just the basics: a card table with some score sheets on it and three of us sitting there doing the scoring. We had magnetic phones — you cranked them to generate electricity — and that's the way we communicated between the three courses."

Tents eventually shielded them from the weather, and they communicated by CB radio, then walkie-talkies, and now the PGA's ShotLink system, the wireless system which records each golf shot electronically.

He moved from scoring to communications, which enabled him to use his skills as an electrician to erect electronic signs and permanent towers. He oversees connecting the dozens of trailers that roll in to Pebble Beach in the days before the tournament and ensures everything works — and keeps working.

Volunteers

The weather factor

Sometimes, the weather tries to get the better of volunteers' efforts.

"Once we had a river going through the tent at 18," he said. "And then there was the wind storm in the late '80s, when it blew all the tents apart and out into the Pacific Ocean. People don't understand how hard that wind blows."

The year it famously snowed on the tournament (1962), Searle was having an early breakfast with a friend when they looked out the window and saw the white stuff coming down.

"It just delayed everything, because it's impossible to play golf in the snow," he said.

Of course, Searle always hopes for good weather, since most of the work his communications committee does is outdoors.

"Outside work and storms don't go quite hand in hand, but we've seen all kinds, and the job always gets done," he said of his 168 committee members, many of whom have worked for him for 35 or 40 years. "We've had ice, snow, rain, wind, floods, slides, hundreds of trees down . . ."

Searle's decades of dedication have not gone unnoticed. Two years ago, out of 60,000 volunteers across the nation, he was named the PGA's Volunteer of the Year.

"I was really shocked," he said. "I had no indication — they just dropped it on us at a meeting one day. I didn't realize it was of the whole United States."

Bing Crosby (left) signed this photograph for longtime AT&T Pebble Beach National Pro-AM volunteer Tom Hefling (right) — a typical show of gratitude from the actor and tournament host. They flank Crosby's son, Nathaniel, and another longtime volunteer, Bud Houser.

One of his longtime committee members is Pebble Beach resident Tom Hefling, who joined the effort 50 years ago after he met Searle while working at Bank of America in Seaside. Searle had an appliance business and was a regular customer.

"I was assigned to the crew at Cypress Point Club," Hefling said. "And I was probably there for 20 or 25 years."

He started as a hole reporter behind the 16th Green, when only five scorers worked the entire course. They had no shelter from wind or rain.

"We had people collecting scores from us as players came through," he said. "Over the years, that has grown, and now we have a score reporter on every hole with computer gadgets to assist them."

Like Searle, Hefling shared a 16th Hole memory.

"I remember one player put a ball in the ocean. He had tried it with a 2-iron, I believe, and he smashed the 2-iron into a fence and broke it," he said. As Hefling took the player's score card at the 18th Green, a PGA official approached the player and said, "That will be five."

"I didn't know what that meant, but the player went and got his checkbook and wrote a check for a $500 fine," Hefling recalled.

As the eventual head of scoring at Cypress, he also had the pleasure of frequently seeing Crosby, who took up residence in one of the upstairs rooms at the clubhouse when he was in town.

"I used to be able to talk with Bing occasionally, because he stayed there at Cypress and would visit our scoring area trying to get away from the people who would always crowd him," he said.

When the pro-am moved to Poppy Hills, Hefling did too. But after deciding he no longer wanted to be committed to several days' work at a single course, Hefling began helping Searle's work with communications and electrical work.

After all the trailers, signs and other equipment are connected, he said, "We hang around and, if there's a problem with power, we try to fix it. I'm just sort of a gofer — I go where I'm needed."

Hefling has found the work satisfying, though he may retire after this year's tournament, which will mark his 50th.

Mistaken for a cook

Carmel resident Sal Nicita pulled the plug on his volunteerism at the tournament two years ago, but he still attends and checks in on his successors. As a thank-you to Nicita for his 40-plus years of service, AT&T Pebble Beach Pro-Am organizers give him season tickets every year.

"Last year I went there and looked at the cooks — not that I have any authority anymore," said Nicita, who cooked for everyone involved in transportation for the tournament. "I had a good crew, and one of them took over."

Nicita began volunteering in the late 1950s at the urging of friends who worked the tournament and told him what fun it was.

"I was one of the conductors of the trolley cars [used to transport spectators among the courses]," he said. "There were a lot of people drinking and laughing, having a good time in these open streetcars. That's what got me started. I enjoyed it, and the atmosphere was a happy one, so I stayed with it."

It was through a simple misunderstanding that he came to cook for more than 100 people every day at the golf tournament. He had been standing in at a local restaurant for a week because the owners were involved in a dispute, and tournament organizers thought he owned the place and asked him to help out with their food operation.

Eventually, he became the cook for the transportation committee, responsible for feeding about 125 people a day — a job he kept for decades.

"It became a family," he said.

The most noticeable change over the years was the size of the event, according to Nicita, and the accompanying rules and structure.

"In the old days, because the tournament was so small, you could just walk with the players, and some of them were the well-known leaders in Hollywood," he said.

Now the professional golfers are more of a draw, and ropes keep the crowds off the fairways.

Nicita also gets nostalgic when he thinks about the volunteer dinners Crosby threw.

"The tables were always set with linen tablecloths and really beautiful glasses and china and everyone was waited on," he said. The tables brimmed with beer and wine, and "as as soon as your cup was empty, another one came."

One year, Bing's brother, Larry, asked Nicita, "How's the food, Sal? Are the people happy? Is there anything else we can do?"
Nicita assured him there wasn't. "He was concerned he wasn't doing enough. I couldn't believe that."

The volunteer party, Saturday night before the tournament begins, is still a big deal, featuring top entertainers like Huey Lewis and Roy Romano.

"All the people who help out are invited as a thank you for working so hard," said volunteer coordinator-

In vast volunteer network, Thomas is chairman of the chairmen

By MARY BROWNFIELD

DON THOMAS, a Toro Park resident who has volunteered with the AT&T Pebble Beach National Pro-Am since 1990, heads the operations committee, which oversees the two tournaments presented by the nonprofit Monterey Peninsula Foundation. He was elected last year and oversaw The First Tee Open in the fall before gearing up for this week's AT&T Pebble Beach Pro-Am — a massive undertaking that depends on almost 2,000 volunteers.

A retired California Highway Patrol officer, Thomas was elected chairman of the nine-member committee, which includes chairs of subcommittees responsible for making sure all facets of the complicated tournament run smoothly.

"He's chairman of the chairmen," said volunteer coordinator Juanita Russo. She works closely with Thomas as he serves as liaison between all of the volunteer committees and the full-time foundation staff.

He also confers with Russo regarding monthly operations committee meeting agendas.

"If we're trying to make a decision and want their input, as far as what they think will be best for the volunteers and chairmen," foundation staff will bring the matter before the operations committee, Russo said.

"And the other chairmen can go to Don Thomas if they have a question if they have a problem, question or concern," she said.

It's an intense job, admitted Thomas, who is also chairman of the distribution committee, which handles all of the clothing offered for sale to volunteers, crystal trophies for the players, gifts for players and volunteers, and supplies.

"I just run the warehouse and then transport all this stuff out to the tournaments," he said. It's a year-round job.

A consequence of Thomas' level of dedication is that he doesn't get to see much of the action on the golf courses, but he said it's a worthwhile sacrifice.

"Everyone says, 'How come you do so much for free?'" he said. "I enjoy it — I wouldn't do it if I didn't."

Also, he says he's awed by the fact that since Bing Crosby brought his Clambake to Pebble Beach in 1947, the tournament has raised and distributed more than $50 million to charities.

"That's a pat on the back for anybody who volunteers," he said. ❍

Juanita Russo. That especially includes old-timers like Searle, who have been mainstays of the tournament since its early days.

And what gives the AT&T Pebble Beach National Pro-Am its longevity? Is it the scenery, the celebrities or the topnotch golf? According to Searle, the pro-am's popularity is due to its unusual format.

"We're the only tournament where the amateurs get to play all four days," he said. "It's been a good draw for us." ❍

How pros qualify

THE 180 professional golfers accompanying their amateur partners in the AT&T Pebble Beach National Pro-Am must also qualify to play, and the PGA TOUR runs through an exhaustive list of candidates based mostly on previous finishes and money earned, according to Pro-Am Executive Director Cindy Zollar.

The pros playing in this year's Pro-Am include these active PGA TOUR players:

- winners of previous AT&T Pebble Beach Pro-Ams;
- winners of "the majors," including the Masters, the U.S. Open, the Players Championship, the British Open and the PGA Championship;
- eight pros of the PGA's choosing, since the group is also an event sponsor;
- winners of the World Golf Championship;
- winners of any PGA TOUR event in the past two years;
- n section champion of the Northern California Section of PGA of America, plus four more players from the section's qualifying rounds on Feb. 3;
- the top 125 players on last year's official money list;
- the leading money winner from last year's Nationwide Tour (formerly the Buy.com Tour);
- the top 10 finishers from last year's AT&T;
- the top 35 finishers from the qualifying tournament held last December in Southern California;
- a PGA TOUR-issued major medical exemption for a player who suffered health problems or else would have finished more strongly; and
- additional players on the official money list below the earlier 135-name cutoff.

Jack London's 'Bruceski 3' to raise money in ALS fight

By MARY BROWNFIELD

THEIR LONGTIME friend, caddie Bruce Edwards, succumbed to Lou Gehrig's Disease last year, but the owners of Jack London's Grill and Taproom will continue hosting a biannual fundraiser in his honor to help fight the disease and find relief for its victims and their families.

"The last year of Bruce's life — once he found out he had this disease — people went out of their way to look for something to help save his life," said Steve Whitfill, who owns the pub with Jack Hill. "There wasn't time, but this event brought awareness of ALS to a lot of people."

ALS — amyotrophic lateral sclerosis — is a progressive neurodegenerative disease that affects nerve cells in the brain and the spinal cord. As the motor neurons die, the brain loses its ability to control muscle movement, leading to paralysis and eventual death.

It is estimated that 5,600 people in the United States are diagnosed with ALS, and 30,000 are suffering from it nationwide at any given time, according to the ALS Association. More men contract the illness than women, and half of its victims live three years or longer following diagnosis. Professional golfer Jeff Julian also died of ALS last year.

Through hosting the Bruceski, which includes a week-long silent auction and a buffet dinner/reception for caddies, golfers, guests and the public on the Tuesday of tournament week, Whitfill and Hill came to work with the ALSA's Bay Area chapter.

"Bruce is gone, but he did a lot to continue the effort to fight the disease," Whitfill said. This year, the ALSA is opening a new outpatient facility in Ryan Ranch.

"We're going to do a Bruceski in Bruce Edwards' honor to help find a cure and help the families," Whitfill said. "And we're going to do it in association with the two professional golf tournaments twice a year until we're no longer in this business."

Jack London's raised more than $20,000 for ALS research and family support from its Bruceskis during last year's AT&T Pebble Beach National Pro-Am in the winter and The First Tee Open in the fall, and Whitfill hopes this year's efforts will surpass that.

"We've been finding out more and more about what's really going on with ALS in this area, and we've met hundreds of people who have been personally affected by it," he said.

Whitfill and Hill have been soliciting donations of cash and auction items and continue to do so. Silent auction items will be listed in Jack London's menus beginning Feb. 6, and bids will be accepted until 10 p.m. Saturday, Feb. 12. Bidders also have the instant-gratification option of buying the item outright for a price slightly above retail value. Bid sheets containing a photo, description and the name of the donor will be available at the bar.

The reception, which will run 5:30 to 8 p.m. Tuesday, Feb. 8, will be free to invited caddies and professional golfers and will cost members of the public $50 to attend.

To learn more, call (831) 624-2336 or stop by Jack London's Grill and Taproom in Su Vecino Court, Dolores Street between Fifth and Sixth.

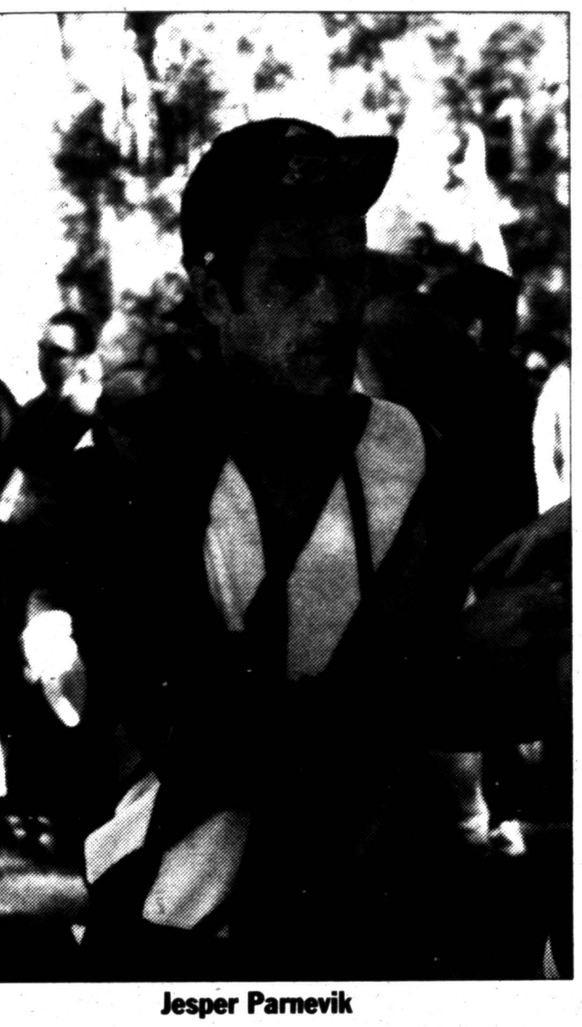
2005 AT&T PEBBLE BEACH NATIONAL PRO-AM

RULES OF PLAY AND PRIZE MONEY

Rules of Play

THE AT&T Pebble Beach tional Pro-Am is unique on the A Tour, in that amateurs continue ying until the last putt on the final nd.

The competition begins with 18-hole rounds on Thursday, Friday and Saturday. Each foursome (two pros and two amateurs) will play one day on each course: Pebble Beach, Poppy Hills and Spyglass. Play begins at 8 a.m. on these days at both the 1st and 10th tees, with foursomes teeing off every ten minutes.



Jesper Parnevik

Each day's total strokes are added to the next for a 72-hole total. The Pro-Am teams' scores are calculated on a better-ball basis, including amateurs' handicap. The pro's score is his individual score.

To keep things moving, amateur contestants are requested to pick up their ball when they are out of the hole — in other words, as soon as his pro partner's score is better than his on an individual hole. Professionals may not pick up and remain in the competition.

On Sunday, teams with the 25 lowest scores and the 60 lowest scoring professionals make the cut to the final round, which is played at the Pebble Beach Golf Links. In case of a tie after the final round, there will be a sudden-death playoff. Total purse for the pros is up to $5 million this year, with $900,000 for the winner (up from $720,000 in 2002). An additional $120,000 goes to the Pro-Am winner. ❍

Star gazing at the AT&T Pebble Beach National Pro-Am

PINE CONE STAFF REPORT

CAMERAS MAY may be banned during the tournament, and autograph-seeking is discouraged except when players have finished their rounds, but the AT&T National Pro-Am is nevertheless one of the best opportunities to t close to your favorite star. Whether you're dicted to movies, love prime-time drama, idolize ofessional athletes, get weak-kneed for rock stars, thrill at the sight of gazillionaire businessmen, e fairways of Pebble Beach, Poppy Hills and yglass are the place to be next week. Here's a rundown of the celebrities who have promised to play. We've also included two who may not play: Tom Brady, because the golf tournament starts just three days after he'll be quarterbacking the New England Patriots in the Superbowl, and Clint Eastwood who, as chairman of the foundation that sponsors the pro-am, is sure to be spotted around the links, even though he's busy promoting his successful new movie, "Million Dollar Baby."

Harris Barton

A tackle for the San Francisco 49ers from 1987 to 1998, Barton was drafted in the first round of the 1987 NFL draft after a stellar collegiate career at the University of North Carolina where he earned a degree in business. Barton was regarded as one of the best-prepared and smartest linemen in the NFL. He also must have been one of the toughest: he was picked by John Madden for the All-Madden Team four times. After retiring, Barton joined Ronnie Lott is forming a venture capital firm, Champion Ventures. Barton supports numerous civic and charitable organizations and, in 1995, he donated $100,000 to his alma mater in honor of his father, Paul, who died in 1994 after a long battle with brain cancer. Barton has also long supported the National Brain Tumor Foundation. At 6' 4" he'll surely be one of the biggest golfers at this year's Pro-Am.

Chris Berman

Perhaps the nation's most colorful sportscaster, Berman was hired by ESPN one month after its inception in 1979. Six times selected National Sportscaster of the Year by the Sportscasters and Sportswriters Association, Berman has also won seven Emmys and 12 CableACE awards. This year was his 19th as host of the ESPN Sunday NFL studio show, and his 15th as a baseball play-by-play announcer for the cable network. But his greatest fame probably comes from his years on Sportscenter (when one of his co-anchors was former Carmel resident Craig Kilborn), where his colorful nicknames for famous athletes became part of the national sports lore: Roberto "Remember the" Alomar, Bert "Be Home" Blyleven, Jim "Two Silhouettes On" Deshaies, and Fred "Crime Dog" McGriff, Andre "Bad Moon" Rison, Curtis "My Favorite" Martin, Steve "I've Got You Babe" Bono and Chris Fuamatu "Bad" Ma'afala, etc. etc.

Michael Bolton

One of the world's top-selling vocalists and song writers, Bolton grew up idolizing such pioneers of R&B as Ray Charles, Otis Redding and Marvin Gaye. Blessed with an incomparable voice, Bolton has sold more than 45 million albums during his career. With two Grammys for Best

Rush Limbaugh

Male Vocalist, six American Music Awards, a string of No. 1 hits (including more than 100 songs he has written for other world-renowned artists), sold-out concerts for millions of people around the globe and many humanitarian and industry awards to his credit, Bolton continues to captivate.

Tom Brady

Quarterback for the New England Patriots, Tom Brady was the MVP in both the 2002 and 2004 Superbowls and he is back in the NFL title game again this year after his team beat the Pittsburgh Steelers 40-24 in the AFC Championship Jan. 23. Last year, his appearance at the AT&T just days after winning the Superbowl came as a major surprise to many, but not to his good friend, Pebble Beach Co. CEO Bill Perocchi. A native of San Mateo, Brady first won the NFL championship in just his second year as a starter.

Glen Campbell

Born in Delight, Ark., Campbell is the seventh son in a family of eight boys and four girls, all of whom played guitar and sang. At 14 he left home to pursue a career in music. He started with a three-piece band in Houston, then he moved to Albuquerque and joined a Western swing band led by his uncle, Dick Bills. At 24, Campbell moved to Los Angeles, where he quickly found studio work as a guitarist. He played on records by Frank Sinatra, Nat King Cole, Merle Haggard, Elvis Presley, Ray Charles and the Mamas and the Papas. In 1965, he even toured as a member of the Beach Boys during the absence of Brian Wilson.

Finally, in 1967, Campbell made a breakthrough under his own name. He took a song that appeared to be all wrong for a pop hit, with a rambling lyric, no chorus and a folk-country feel. For the first of many times to come, he recorded a song simply because he thought it was a great song, and "Gentle on My Mind" went on to become not only his signature song, but one of the most played singles in history.

He hosted a summer replacement TV show for the Smothers Brothers in 1968 which was so successful that he had his own show, "The Glen Campbell Goodtime Hour," through 1972. He earned a pair of gold singles in 1969 with "Wichita Lineman" and "Galveston." Campbell hit No. 1 on the country, pop and easy-listening charts in 1975 with "Rhinestone Cowboy," and he topped the pop charts again in 1977 with "Southern Nights." He starred in two movies, "True Grit" (with John Wayne) and "Norwood," and recorded an album with the Royal Philharmonic Orchestra.

Kevin Costner

Winner of the 1991 Best Director Oscar for "Dances with Wolves," Costner has starred in more than 20 motion pictures.

Born and raised in California, Costner has a degree in marketing from Cal-State Fullerton, where a local production of "Rumpelstiltskin" started a fairy tale career that made him into one of Hollywood's all-time leading men.

His first two attention-getting movies were "The Untouchables" and "No Way Out," followed by a pair of contrasting baseball films, the iconoclastic "Bull Durham" and the inspirational hit, "Field of Dreams."

Costner then used his new Hollywood clout to make "Dances with Wolves."

Carson Daly

Winner of a golf scholarship to Loyola Marymount University and a one-time caddy for O.J. Simpson, Daly gained fame as host of the MTV show, "Total Request Live," and now has his own late-night talk show on NBC, "Last Call With Carson Daly," which follows Jay Leno and Conan O'Brien.

William Devane

Perhaps best known for his 10-year stint as a corporate cad on "Knot's Landing," Devane has appeared in numerous TV mini-series and more than 20 films, including "Marathon Man," "Yanks," "Payback" and "Hollow Man."

Tom Dreesen

A comedian who has played Vegas, Reno and Atlantic City with the likes of Liza Minelli and Sammy Davis, Jr., and who spent a decade as Frank Sinatra's opening act, has also appeared in many network television shows including more than 50 appearances on the "Tonight Show" and guest roles on TV shows such as "Columbo," "Gabriel's Fire," "Murder She Wrote" and "Touched By An Angel." To show his versatility, he once recorded a comedy album, "That White Boy's Crazy," before an all black audience. According to Dreesen, he never strayed too far from his old neighborhood, and to show appreciation, the city of Harvey, Ill. named a street after him, "Dreesen Street," on Aug. 22, 1992.

Clint Eastwood

Mayor of Carmel-by-the-Sea from 1986 to 1988 and supporter of numerous local charitable and conservation causes, the indefatigable Eastwood is a familiar face on the Monterey Peninsula. Winner of Best Director and Best Actor Oscars for "Unforgiven" (1992), Eastwood has appeared in, produced and/or directed more than 50 motion pictures, from "Revenge of the Creature" (1955) to "Mystic River" (2003). His latest movie, "Million Dollar Baby," starring Hilary Swank and Morgan Freeman, won five Gold Globes and picked up seven Academy Award Nominations, including Eastwood's second in a row for Best Director (last year he was nominated for "Mystic River"). In 2000, he was honored by President Bill Clinton with the Kennedy Center Medal for his lifetime achievements in the arts. Eastwood, a co-owner of the Pebble Beach Company, is chairman of the board of the Monterey Peninsula Foundation, the charity group that hosts the AT&T Pro-Am. He lives in Pebble Beach with his wife, Dina Ruiz Eastwood, and their daughter, Morgan.

Legendary saxophonist and the best-selling instrumentalist/musician in the world, Kenny G has been a constant presence on the Billboard charts for more than 15 years. His career as a saxophonist began at 17 when he backed up Barry White in a concert in Seattle, Kenny G's home town. When he signed his first recording contract in 1982, a new era in instrumental music was born.

Andy Garcia

Born in Cuba in 1956, Garcia's family fled to Miami Beach after Castro came to power. He studied acting in Florida before heading to Los Angeles, where his first role was as a gang member on the first episode of "Hill Street Blues." Garcia later starred in "The Untouchables," "The Godfather, Part III" and "Desperate Measures."

Thomas Gibson

The star of "Dharma and Greg," a five-year hit for ABC, he also played Danny Nyland on "Chicago Hope." elivery man who loves his big screen TV as much as his beautiful wife on the prime-time CBS comedy "The King of Queens." James is a native of Stony Brook, Long Island. He was born on April 26, 1965, and attended Cortland State University in N.Y. for three years and then got his start in stand-up comedy, which is his first love. He got his big break at the 1996 Montreal Comedy Festival and was cast in a recurring role in the comedy series "Everybody Loves Raymond," starring his best friend, Ray Romano.

Huey Lewis

A native of New York, Lewis created his breakthrough group, Huey Lewis and the News, in Marin County in 1980. Their first album produced a top-10 hit, "Do You Believe in Love?" and was followed by five other top-20 recordings. Lewis also recorded the theme song, "The Power of Love," for the movie "Back to the Future."

George Lopez

The multitalented George Lopez stars, writes and co-produces the ABC sitcom, "George Lopez," which is a hit with critics and viewers. Lopez performs on stage, film and television and has earned kudos for his performance in the HBO Films drama, "Real Women Have Curves." Previously, Lopez was featured in the acclaimed drama "Bread and Roses." The film, directed by British filmmaker Ken Loach, received critical acclaim after its premiere at the Cannes Film Festival. Lopez also appeared in the Showtime film, "Fidel," and the comedy "Frank McKluskey, C.I." for Disney. His numerous television credits include appearances on "The Tonight Show," "Good Morning America," "The View," "Live with Regis and Kelly," "Craig Kilborn" and "Resurrection Boulevard." He frequently hosts Univision's "Loco Comedy Jam."

Andy Garcia

Bill Murray

A favorite at the AT&T Pro-Am, Murray is one of America's unique talents. Born in 1950 in Wilmette, Ill., Murray first moved to the nation's center stage when he joined the cast of Saturday Night Live in 1977. While still with SNL, Murray made his first hit film, "Meatballs." Soon after, he was transformed into Carl Speckler, assistant greenskeeper, in the classic golf comedy, "Caddyshack." That film was directed by Harold Ramis, who starred with Murray in "Ghostbusters" (1984) and directed him again in "Groundhog Day" (1993).

Craig T. Nelson

Star of the CBS show, "The District," where he portrays Chief Jack Mannion, Craig Richard Nelson was born April 4, 1946, in Spokane, Wash. He attended the University of Arizona and studied acting at the Oxford Theater in Los Angeles. Nelson began his career working with Barry Levinson as a radio writer/performer and stand-up comic. He added the "T" to his name because there was another actor registered with the Screen Actor's Guild that had the same name. His previous prime-time show, "Coach," was a major hit from 1989 to 1997.

Chris O'Donnell

A native of Winnetka, Ill., O'Donnell is best known for his portrayal of Robin in "Batman Forever" and "Batman and Robin," and for "Scent of a Woman," which earned him a Best Supporting Actor Oscar nomination. He also got highly favorable reviews for "The Three Musketeers" in 1993.

Ray Romano

Star of the CBS Monday night comedy, "Everybody Loves Raymond," Romano is expert at portraying a man who is clueless about relationships. The native New Yorker recently told USA Today that there's nothing wrong with men handling their personal lives ineptly. "Just try to be likable about it," he said.

Gary Sinise

Star of the popular CBS Wednesday night crime drama, "CSI: NY," Sinise plays the soft-spoken but authoritative detective Mack Taylor — a role that builds on his portrayal of the emotionally shattered Lieutenant Dan Taylor in the 1994 Oscar-winning Best Picture, "Forest Gump." A founding member, along with John Malkovich, of Chicago's influential Steppenwolf Theater Company, Sinise told one biographer he has built his career not by trying to take off like a rocket, but by "always keeping the engine running." He also played an unjustly grounded astronaut in "Apollo 13" (1995) and portrayed former Alabama Governor George Wallace in a 1997 biographical film.

Emmitt Smith

Just 5' 9" tall, Smith is one of football's preeminent players and the all-time leading runner, having rushed 153 touchdowns in 13 seasons with the Dallas Cowboys. Playing the last two seasons with the Arizona Cardinals, Smith's career running yardage is up to a record 18,355.

Tommy Smothers

With his brother, Dick, Smothers formed a comedy duo that always seemed to be ahead of its time. The Smothers Brothers' first professional appearance was at The Purple Onion in San Francisco in 1959 and their first national television appearance was on The Jack Paar show on January 28,1961. They had their own prime time comedy shows in the 1960s, 1970s and 1980s, produced 12 top-selling albums and have made countless appearances in Las Vegas and around the country.

According to his official bio, Tom's "passion Is for golf," which is no surprise to fans of the AT&T who, during lulls in play, have also been treated to his amazing yo-yo tricks.

Lynn Swann

A Pro Football Hall of Fame member and former wide receiver, Swann played for the Pittsburgh Steelers from 1974 to 1982 — a span during which the Steelers won six straight AFC titles and four Super Bowls. In his career, Swann had 336 receptions for 5,462 yards and 51 touchdowns.

Donald Trump

One of New York's dominant personalities, Trump has altered the Manhattan skyline with numerous distinctive building projects (which he often names for himself), including Fifth Avenue's "Trump Tower." He is also a chairman of the board of a corporation which owns one of Atlantic City's biggest casinos, the Taj Mahal. Trump got his start in the real estate business from his father, Fred, who developed numerous middle-class housing projects in various NYC boroughs. From that relatively modest beginning, the outspoken and flamboyant Donald Trump became the most daring real estate developer of the last 20 years. And now he is a TV star, with a mega-hit show on NBC, "The Apprentice" — sort of a corporate "Survivor."

Clay Walker

Singer/guitarist and one of the U.S.A.'s biggest Country and Western stars, Walker began performing professionally at 16 in his native Beaumont, Texas. In the fall of 1993 his first single, "What's It To You," went straight to number one on the charts. His biggest selling albums are "Say No More" and "Live Laugh Love." Walker is considered a modest individual and says he sees himself in the face of each and every fan. "When we make records," he says, "it's final. The records will always be the same, but it's the fans who give life to the music. On stage, you know immediately if you are really reaching people."

James Woods

Perhaps the most intense actor in America, Woods has frightened or fascinated audiences in movies like "The Onion Field," "Once Upon a Time in America," "Salvador," "Ghosts of Mississippi" and "Any Given Sunday." He has been the voice of Hades, Lord of the Dead, in two "Hercules" animated films for Disney and portrayed former N.Y. Mayor Rudy Giuliani in a 2003 biographical TV movie. In 1999, he costarred in the Clint Eastwood-directed "True Crime." ❍

A thrilling read with a Pebble Beach golf setting

By MARGOT PETIT NICHOLS

WHAT COULD be more appropriate for AT&T golfers and fans than a murder mystery novel set on the fairways? And most particularly, Pebble Beach fairways.

"Murder at Pebble Beach —A Shane O'Neill Mystery" by R. C. Coile, Jr., has just been released and is available at most local bookstores.

The time span of the book encompasses the day before the AT&T Pebble Beach National Pro-Am tournament begins through day four, with protagonist Shane O'Neill — a former Los Angeles cop five years into retirement — fulfilling his lifelong dream of a career on the PGA tour.

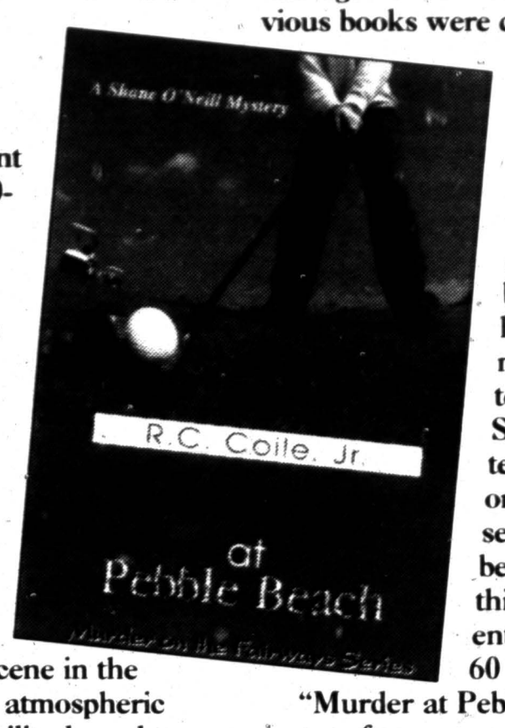
O'Neill is returning for the second year as a participant in the Pro-Am at Pebble Beach when a murder takes place before his eyes during an early morning practice the day before "the clambake" is set to commence. With him at the Monterey Peninsula Country Club is his caddy, Topflight.

Witnessing a car purposely pushed off an ocean cliff by a Dodge Ram truck, O'Neill attempts rescue of the driver. Pulling the dead body from the ocean, he discovers from his identification that the murdered man is the chief financial officer of McCoy Golf International, one of O'Neill's sponsors.

Pebble Beach security responds to Topflight's call to 911, and secures the scene. Recognizing O'Neill as a former policeman, the head of security contacts him the next day with a proposition: Secretly keep an eye on Japan's leading golfer, Tommy Toshiro, during the tournament because an attempt on Toshiro's life has already been made on the highway between San Francisco airport and Pebble Beach.

O'Neill agrees, and teamed with Julie McCoy, also of McCoy Golf International, and accompanied by Topflight, the trio play their way around three Pebble Beach courses, while trying to simultaneously investigate the murder mystery.

Enough tension to throw O'Neill off his game? Add Japanese gangsters to this mix along with industrial espionage between golf equipment manufacturers and 60-year-old O'Neill finds himself right back in the stress levels he was working under in Los Angeles.



Following his investigative skills as he works toward solving the mystery and protecting Toshiro makes for an exciting read. The author's descriptions of each scene in the book are wonderfully atmospheric and add to the verisimilitude and suspense of the well-plotted novel.

This is not the author's first book, but it is his first novel. Before he wrote "Murder at Pebble Beach," Russell C. Coile had penned 15 others. Coile was a leading healthcare management consultant, and his previous books were concerned with health industry trends and how the industry should plan for the future. He died in November 2003 of complications from brain cancer which he battled for seven months. He planned to continue his Shane O'Neill mysteries on a Murder on the Fairway series, a loss that will be felt by readers of this riveting, golf-oriented book. He was 60 years old.

"Murder at Pebble Beach," a 226-page softcover, was published posthumously by iUniverse, Inc., Lincoln, Neb., and retails for $16.95. His father, Russell Coile Sr., and brother, Andrew Coile, both live in Pacific Grove. ❍
